EDWARD ABDICATES; DUKE OF YORK ACCEDES

Simpson Waiting For Her Unthroned King; Refuses To Comment

By The Associated Press.

Cannes, France, Dec. 10.—Wallis Warfield Simpson waited tonight for her unthroned king.

She held herself a prisoner in her Riviera haven, whence she came December 3 from England when the waves of controversy surrounding King Edward's intention to marry her began to beat about her head.

Today she knew before the world learned that the monarch had given up his imperial charge in order to make her his bride.

She had been in telephonic communication with London during the morning.

The way cleared for their marriage, she refused through her spokesmen to comment on Edward's world-shaking pronouncement: "I have determined to renounce the throne." Then she retired to seclusion.

Eight French detectives and officers from Scotland Yard in London stood guard inside and outside the grounds of Lou Viei villa to see that her withdrawal into privacy is observed.

A crowd gathered during the afternoon in a soaking rain, but the officers had little to do. There was no sign of the striking brunette divorcee.

She "has nothing to say," brokenly declared Lord Brownlow, gentleman-in-waiting to the king, who came out, head bowed, to meet newspapermen after the world knew love had triumphed over duty in the heart of the world's mightiest monarch.

"There has been no statement, and there will be no statement," concluded Brownlow as he turned and slowly retraced his steps to the stuccoed villa nestling near terraces of orange groves and pine trees beside the sea.

Wallis' plans were undisclosed tonight, but it was announced she would not meet Edward here.

Before Brownlow disclosed that she would not comment on the dramatic action of the man who loves her, another spokesman, Herman Rogers, of New York, owner of the villa, announced:

"Not only is the king not coming to the villa but he is not coming to the Riviera.

"What his definite plans are, we do not know, but we do know that much.

"There are no changes so far as Mrs. Simpson's plans are concerned. She plans to stay here at least until after Christmas."

That disposed of the possibility Edward might spend the holiday season with her either here, one of his favorite vacation spots, or in the Austrian Tyrol, another of his haunts.

Mrs. Simpson slept late this morning while the man who soon formally was to renounce his throne for love of her was closeted in a last conference with his brothers at Fort Belvedere in foggy England.

After that, villa servants said, she spent some time on the telephone with persons of undisclosed identity in London, where her personal attorney, Theodore Goddard, returned bearing brief cases loaded with documents.

He had conferred with her here, but it was denied she had signed any papers.

Likewise, her spokesman said she had made no move to speed up the effective date of her decree nisi of divorce from Ernest Aldrich Simpson, which would enable her and her royal admirer to be married sooner.

British nisi decrees normally are made absolute in six months. Mrs. Simpson's waiting period expires April 27.

This period may be shortened under extraordinary circumstances, but there were no indications either wished this done.

Friends furthermore said it likely they may not meet for some time, preferring to let events in connection with the divorce run a normal course.

P. M. OF A. HEAD IN CUSTODY FOR TRAIN BOMBINGS

William Keck, Gillespie, Arrested With 20 Others

U. S. Marshal Suppresses Specific Charges in Case

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 10.—(AP)—The president of the Progressive Miners of America, William Keck of Gillespie, was taken into custody today by the federal government in the drive to solve coal field dynamiting of railroad trains.

Head of the four-year-old dual union, Keck was arrested by police at his Gillespie headquarters at the request of U. S. Marshal Paul E. Ruppel.

Specific charges were suppressed as the union leader became the 21st prisoner to face indictments returned in the long investigation of mine terrorism which followed a split in the Illinois ranks of the United Mine Workers of America.

In mid-afternoon, Eddie Lee, a Springfield member of the Progressive union, surrendered at the police station and was held with other miners. Officers said he was the last man in central Illinois for whom a warrant had been issued.

The federal grand jury recently indicted Lee's wife for contempt and perjury during the bombing investigation.

Keck and his attorney, A. M. Fitzgerald at Springfield, were silent as plans were made to obtain his release on bond.

As Ruppel went to Gillespie to bring Keck to the jail here, only two of the other twenty central Illinois men arrested last night were able to furnish the $10,000 bail.

After being finger-printed, photographed and held over night, Dan McGill of Springfield, who helped organize the Progressive union in 1932, was released. Although held on three counts, McGill was turned loose on $10,000 bond after officials conferred by long distance telephone with District Judge J. Earl Major at Peoria.

McGill on February 1 is scheduled to resume his old job as Progressive board member from the Springfield district. On that date, Keck's two year term as union president ends.

Also released was Anton V. Gent, Springfield miner.

Fitzgerald said some of the prisoners weren't miners. Most of them were identified as Progressives by Ruppel.

The indictments, charging violations of three federal statutes, were returned Tuesday night after special prose-

DROP PLANS FOR TAX STRUCTURE REDUCTION

Washington, Dec. 10. — (AP)—Congressional plans for a "streamlined" federal tax structure were said on high authority today to have been shelved so that most of the current revenues may be retained.

The "streamlining" contemplated elimination of levies that conflicted with state taxes and sometimes caused friction. The plan held a possibility that many important sources of revenue would be lost to the federal government.

Decision against so pruning the national tax system at this time was said to have been based on advice of fiscal experts who doubted that appropriations for government departments would be reduced sufficiently to warrant it next year.

MANILA FLOOD

Manila, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Health Director Eugenio Hernando tonight reported "hunger everywhere" in the floodswept Cagayan valley.

Official advices said 80,000 persons needed relief.

They also showed thirteen towns and scores of villages badly affected in Isabela, one of the three provinces through which the destructive waters rushed Friday. The reports added the death and property toll would be "great" but remained undetermined.

FUTURE INCOME OF EDWARD IS QUESTION MARK

Uncertain Whether Edward Will Accept Pension

May Retain Part of Earnings From English Duchies

London, Dec. 10.—(AP)—The future income of Edward Windsor was a question mark tonight.

Whether the man who today gave up the throne of England will accept a pension from the government was one of the abdication details remaining unannounced, but it was generally taken for granted he would have ample means, from one surce or the other.

It had been assumed he would retain at least part of the half million-dollar annual income from the Duchies of Lancaster and Cornwall.

But the abdication bill title phrase, "demise of the crown," seemed to indicate this was impossible.

A reigning king receives £43,000 sterling ($215,000) from Lancaster. Since birth, Edward has got approximately £70,000 ($350,000) annually from Cornwall, always designed for the king's eldest son.

To save the British taxpayer money, Edward, after alloting £25,000 ($125,000) to the Duke of York, has applied this private income since his accession against his "salary" as king. The latter is fixed by the civil list and, in Edward's case, totalled £410,000 ($2,050,000). Had he married, retaining the throne there would have been £40,000 ($200,000) more each year.

Little is known of Edward's possession, aside from the Duchies and his "EP" Canadian ranch, recently put on the market.

Sandringham, as well as Fort Belvedere and Balmoral, were bought by Edward's ancestors.

To be decided is whether Edward inherited these as the oldest son of his father, or as his successor on the throne.

In the latter event, he could retain only his strictly personal property—and government aid might be welcome.

Full Moral Support Of U.S. Is Given To Spanish Peace Move

Note Makes Plain, However, That No Active Part Will Be Taken

Washington., Dec. 10.—(AP)—The full moral support of the United States government was thrown unexpectedly today behind the effort of Great Britain and France to bring peace in Spain.

A formal statement by R. Walton Moore, acting secretary of state, expressed this government's "very earnest hope" that a mediation attempt initiated in Paris and London would be successful. It was made plain, however, that the United States does not intend to participate actively.

The pronouncement, made with the approval of President Roosevelt, now enroute to the United States from the Buenos Aires peace conference, emphasized that it represented no change from the traditional American policy of non-interference with other nations.

The statement followed press reports that Britain and France had invited Germany, Italy, Russia and Portugal to join in an offer to mediate the Spanish conflict and substitute for it plebiscite through which Spaniards could choose the type of government they preferred.

Madrid, Dec. 10—(AP)—Fascist insurgents struck again at Madrid today from the west but the government declared tonight the attackers had been driven off in a bitter three-hour struggle.

The insurgent assault was centered around Pozuelo, a few miles west of the city, and the San Fernando bridge.

Three fast Fascist bombing planes flew over the southwestern part of Madrid, dropping propaganda leaflets, and sped away

Women and children continued to pour out of the city toward the east.

The Socialist administration asked the German and Italian consuls at Bilbao, on the north coast, to leave for their own countries.

(Germany and Italy have been accused by the Spanish government of aiding the Fascist insurgents. Both those nations have recognized the Fascist junta.)

"MUST"

Washington,, Dec. 10.—(AP)—The Social Security Board asserted tonight that every eligible employee must participate in the federal old age annuity program whether he wants to or not.

ABDICATION IS CALLED PEAK OF BALDWIN CAREER

Minister's Prestige At High Point In Commons

London, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin's prestige in the House of Commons appeared tonight at the highest peak of his long career in public life.

Members of parliament acclaimed as a personal triumph for the grim, stocky personification of John Bull the manner in which he handled the revelation and background of King Edward VIII's abdication.

Quickly, the comment in the lobbies turned to a discussion whether the prime minister, at the flood tide of his prestige would seize this opportunity to retire from public life as he has threatened time after time.

Long before "L'affaire Simpson" had thrust the prime minister into conflict with his sovereign, it had been expected Baldwin would retire, probably after the coronation scheduled May 12.

Political talk has long held that tall, lean, scraggly-moustached Neville Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, was being groomed to take over the reins.

Chamberlain, half-brother of former Foreign Minister Sir Austen Chamberlain, is a bulwark in the conservative party, which is the power behind the national government.

But tonight the talk of the prime minister's possible retirement and of Chamberlain's succession to his post was over-shadowed by the tributes for Baldwin.

The prime minister was acclaimed by members of all parties as having handled probably the most difficult problem of its kind that ever confronted a man in his position.

The Laborites held a party conference tonight in which, it was stated later, the great majority of the members supported Baldwin throughout.

A handful, including long-haired James Maxton, chairman of the Independent Labor party, and George Buchanan, Laborite from Glasgow, alone seized the opportunity to denounce the whole institution of royalty.

SHORT REIGN OF EDWARD SET NEW ERA PRECEDENTS

Broke With Past In A Spectacular Manner

London, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Slim, blond Edward VIII who forsook his empire today for love brought to a spectacular climax a short, precedent-shattering reign.

In his 326 days on the throne he brushed aside mellowed traditions and time-honored customs with dash and self-will as he inaugurated a new Edwardian era.

He broke with the past in a more dazzling manner than his grandfather, Edward VII, threw aside the shackles of Victorianism.

To his motto as Prince of Wales, "I serve," he added his credo: "Let's get on with it."

Barely had he succeeded his father at five minutes short of midnight on Jan. 20 than the new sovereign issued as one of his first commands a crisp: "Fix that clock!"

It was an order that cut across a link with two reigns.

For thirty-odd years the clocks in Sandringham had pointed a half-hour fast because Edward VII wanted his house guests to get on with their shooting on time.

One hundred and fifty clocks were set back at the new monarch's command.

Ireland May Sever Direct Connection With British King

Dublin, Irish Free State, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Usually informed persons said late tonight the Irish Free State parliament probably would sever its last direct connection with the British Crown tomorrow.

These sources said proposals would be submitted to parliament—called the Dail Eireann—to amend the constitution of the free state, which has the status of a British dominion, so as to completely eliminate the King from the charter and vest all executive authority in the Dail and the Irish cabinet.

Such a move, it was said in these quarters, would be in line with President Eamon De Valera's program of cutting out of the constitution elements which, in his words, "create a source of irritation to the Irish national feeling."

The government indicated it would agree with the British parliament in accepting the abdication of King Edward as "King of Ireland."

The net result of this action, usually informed sources said, would be recognition of the next king, the present Duke of York, as a symbol of cooperation.

King Edward On The Air

New York, Dec. 9.—(AP)—King Edward's message to the British Empire which he is to deliver tomorrow over the British Broadcasting Company, will be carried in this country by both NBC and CBS. The announced time is 4:00 p. m., CST.

'BERTIE' FACES THE CHALLENGE OF EDWARD VIII

Ex-King Once Said Brother Should Be Monarch

Duke of York Strained by Events of The Past Week

London, Dec. 10—(AP)—Great Britain's new monarch—the man who will become either King Albert I or King George VI.—tonight faced the challenge voiced by the man who was King.

"My brother Bertie," said Ex-King Edward, when he was Prince of Wales, "would make a better King than I would."

The sallow-cheeked "Bertie," who once wryly complained in a public statement that his chief claim to fame seemed to be that he was the father of two small, golden-curled Princesses in effect took over the reins of dynasty at 10 A. M.—The moment a thin ribbon of ink traced the signature "Edward R. I." on the formal document of abdication.

At that historic moment, as Edward's pen dotted the last period of his signature as Rex-Imperator, the erstwhile Duke of York stepped out or his life-long "second fiddle" and became Sovereign of the greatest empire on earth—subject only to the formal approval of the British and Dominion parliaments.

And for the first time in exactly 248 years to the day since James II. fled England on Dec. 10, 1688, the throne changed hands without the melancholy cry ringing through the streets.

As the 40-year old Duke emerged from his London home, no thrill-fevered crowds waited outside to cheer, as they had cheered the new King Edward VIII on a bitterly cold winter's day last January.

No thousands stood hour after hour, hoping for a glimpse of the new ruler, as they had stood outside St. Jame's palace for a fleeting sight of Edward on his return to London from Sandringham as the new King last January 21.

For the Duke of York himself the day was one of frenzied activity.

Already strained near the breaking-point by the landslide events of the past week he arrived at Fort Belvedere at 9 A. M., pale and tired, for a last conference with Edward and his two other brothers, the Dukes of Gloucester and Kent.

"Two Little Girls" Will Call Parents King, "Queen Bess"

Elizabeth Alexandra Mary to Be Heiress Presumptive to Throne

London, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Two little girls peered out into the London fog tonight from a lighted, top-floor window of No. 145 Piccadilly, 2. 1.

For just a moment they stood there, poignant little silhouettes in the golden square. Then a curtain fell.

One was Elizabeth Alexandra Mary, 10-year-old princess of York, tonight the most important little girl in all the whole world, heiress presumptive within a few hours to the throne of the British empire.

The other was Margaret Rose, her six-year-old sister.

Their father is the new king of England, their pretty mother the new queen. Some day they'll call her "Queen Bess" and mean it.

But her dogs, her pony, her garden and her lessons have filled fair-haired Elizabeth's world, rather than the half-billion subjects who some day will owe her allegiance in the land where the sun never sets.

In the afternoon she goes for a motor drive, or plays games in the garden with Margaret and their little friends.

Each year she knits scarves for her grandmother's—Queen Mother Mary's—Needle Work Guild, to help the poor folk so eager to wear a princess' gift, despite the dropped stitches here and there.

Hailed at her birth on the 21st of April, 1926, as the future "Queen Bess," Elizabeth has had one really important public appearance. That was when she served as bridesmaid his marriage to Princess Marina of for her uncle, the Duke of Kent, at Greece.

ON LOSING SHIRTS

Asbury Park, N. J., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Addressing the biennial session of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, Roger W. Babson, economist and moderator of the National Council of Congregational-Christian Churches, warned pastors to direct their retirement fund investments toward stocks "if you don't want to lose your shirts."

He said investments in bonds during the depression were wise, but advised a change because of the current "inflationary movement."

King Awaits One Last Document To End Role As Britain's Monarch

By The Associated Press.

London, Dec. 11.—(Friday)—Edward VIII renounced the throne of the British Empire for a woman's love and today the Duke of York, his brother and successor took on his shoulders the problems of a troubled world.

Thus forces were set in motion which may not be fully judged in this generation.

Still King and Emperor, Edward awaited one last document, the law of abdication, before becoming David Windsor who would marry Wallis Warfield Simpson, American born and twice divorced.

The King and the King-to-be had probably their last dinner together in Edward's retreat at Fort Belvedere. There Edward gave what counsel he could to the brother who will succeed him when the law dethroning the one and enthroning the other is passed by Parliament and signed by Edward today. That will end his role as King.

Farewell to his 495,000,000 subjects will be spoken by Edward in a broadcast tonight. It was announced he will speak as a simple citizen. He may not even speak from England. He may speak from France where he is expected to fly when he formally lays down his scepter and starts his new life.

He will be an exue, in fact for a time, if not by legal requirement. His abdication, read in Parliament today, gave his decision as "irrevocable" and surrendered rights to the throne in the name of any descendants. He cut himself off for all time for the woman he loves and who waits for him at Cannes, where from the Villa Lou Viei she looked out through drizzling rain, under dark clouds at an uneasy sea.

"Long live the King," shouted many tonight but many also were quiet, disturbed and uneasy. They symbolized the world's unrest, the changing times that shadow the universe with war and threat of war, political upheavals, economic changes and grave doubt of what the future may bring.

While "long live the King," echoed, the British Parliament hea.' predictions of the "end of Kings."

Three members attacked the government, the King and the Monarchic system.

James Maxton, left-wing Laborite, declared the "institution of Monarchy had outlived its usefulness" and pointed to the present crisis as a lesson.

Socialist George Buchana spoke of "pampered royalty" which is "surrounded by a set of flunkies."

"If the King was one-tenth as good as you say he was, why does everyone want him to be unloaded? It is because you know he was a weak creature and you want to get rid of him."

William Gallacher, only Communist in Parliament, called the crisis "an issue between two groups who were fighting continually for domination."

"It will not be possible," he said, "to repair the damage that has been done to the Monarchial institution of this country."

These minority voices, raised amidst a floodtide of satisfaction and approval, expressed publicly and boldly the anxieties businessmen and politicians have spread in mild terms as they questioned the future.

The crisis went, Economists said, deeper than that.

Prime Minister Baldwin himself touched on the seriousness of the case Monday when he told the House of Commons "any considerable prolongation of the present state of suspense and uncertainty would involve

Electrocution Of Murderess Upheld

Springfield, Ill., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Electrocution of a woman was ordered today as the Illinois Supreme Court upheld the conviction of Mrs. Mildred Bolton for the murder at Chicago of her husband, Joseph W. Bolton, Jr.

In one of 53 opinions handed down by the court, it was found that Mrs. Bolton "killed her husband, not because she was overcome by a sudden rage or irresistable impulse to do so, but becauses she deliberately planned the act."

The murder toook place in Bolton's office last June when his wife went there to collect a temporary alimony payment.

Feb. 26 was set as the date for her execution.

Other decisions:

Held unconstitutional the 1935 filled milk law, enacted at the request of dairy interests to prevent the Carolene Products Company of Litchfield from combining cocoanut oil with skimmed milk.

Affirmed the conviction of Abraham Karatz, former St. Paul attorney, for conspiracy to defraud the Amalgamated Trust & Savings Bank of Chicago in a plot to get funds to buy the Abraham Lincoln Life Insurance Company of Springfield. Five others were convicted in the case.

EMPIRE LEARNS OF ABDICATION; GIVE NEW VOWS

Celebrations For The New King Appear Restrained

Some Cheered For Edward Before London Palace

London, Dec. 10.—(AP)—British subjects throughout the world learned today of their Monarch's abdication for the most part with resigned acceptance.

In every corner of the Empire there were restrained celebrations for the new King—and in London some cheers for Edward.

Crowds heard of Edward's historic decision and sorrowfully told one another, "the king has adbicated." Then they stood silently for hours before scattering.

Factory whistles in New Zealand screamed their signal almost at the same time crowds outside Parliament learned the news, the official announcement of abdication coming by radio.

Australians stayed up after midnight waiting for the final word from London. Forewarned by strong intimations of a "grave decision," crowds stood patiently but in tense suspense.

Prime Minister Joseph A. Lyons of Australia echoed official statements from other parts of the Empire when he said "we are sad of heart bidding Edward farewell."

Bombay officials expressed relief that the King's renunciation of his throne had ended a constitutional crisis without endangering the crown.

Mounting excitement in South Africa was quelled by the actual announcement.

The Canadian cabinet authorized approval with that of the English Commons of the adbication of Edward VIII and the accession of the Duke of York to the throne.

Both in Dublin and Belfast tremendous excitement was displayed when the news was received but only Belfast, Northern Ireland, followed with expressions of loyalty to the new King.

From far-off Colonial stations in India, on tiny islands in the Pacific ocean, from Eastern Crown Lands, came formal expressions of regret coupled with pledges of fealty to the new occupant of the throne.

The rest of the world learned of the abdication in varied manner.

Official comment was not forthcoming from Greece, Soviet Russia or Germany, but newspapers in all countries paid tribute to Edward, whose personal warmth was demonstrated in many of them during his visits as Prince of Wales.

European powers, for the most part, took the attitude Edward's romance with Mrs. Simpson was their own, personal affair; the constitutional crisis and internal situation in the Empire, Britian's alone.

Reluctance of newspapers in many parts of the world to mention the name of the abdicated king's sweetheart was attributed to laws and customs in some countries prohibiting discussions of the private lives of heads of state.

EXPERTS DIFFER ON GIRL SLAYER'S MIND

East Lansing, Mich., Dec. 10.—(AP)—Experts differed tonight in their opinions on the mental condition of Hope Morgan, 25, who confessed that she shot and killed her friend, Elizabeth Giltner, also 25, because of "an irresistible impulse."

Dr. Carl W. Bradford, neuro-psychiatrist, after interviewing Miss Morgan in her jail cell said she is "building up a defense mechanism" and has not answered investigating officers truthfully.

Dr. Lemoyne Snyder, medico-legal advisor of the Michigan state police, described Miss Morgan as a "distinct case of dementia praecox" w[illegible] was arrested Tuesday night a few hours after the shooting. Dr. Snyder reaffirmed his statement today.

An Optimistic Report

Jacksonville business men, like those in all other communities, have been engaged in the past few years in digging out of depression. That they have done a neat job of it is reflected in figures just released by the Bureau of Census, U. S. Department of Commerce, showing that business gains estimated at $2,000,000, have been made in this community within a 2 year period.

Business men of Jacksonville and other citizens have for some time observed a "turn" in general conditions. Most of them realized, and some boldly asserted, that things were getting better. The official figures of the federal department bear out the belief that Jacksonville is picking up commercially, forging to the front again, after business throughout the country suffered a paralysis that was more pronounced in many places than in this community.

The report of the Department of Commerce, based on statistics supplied by a number of reliable sources, carries a definite message of optimism. If Jacksonville business can add a million dollars a year to its total for two years, there is every reason to believe that the upward trend will continue. If the United States is back on the road to prosperity, Jacksonville is ready to lead the parade, having a substantial start from conditions that prevailed a few years ago.

For many years Jacksonville has had the reputation of being a "good business" town. By that, it was meant that the volume of commerce was steady—that the community was not easily affected by the ups and downs of open and closed manufacturing plants; that business here went ahead as usual despite the uncertainty of crop successes, though these factors may have entered into the total volume of business.

Jacksonville's business is highly diversified. It depends on a score of industries, rather than one or two huge concerns, to keep the wheels of commerce turning.

It is an agricultural center, but not in the midst of a specialized area. The farms in Morgan and adjacent counties produce a large list of products. Activities are not limited to dairying, to livestock production, to corn farming or wheat raising. The farms through this section of the state do a little of all of these. Therefore, if the dairy industry takes a slump, the farmers are likely to turn greater attention to growing corn, or to taking up the slack by some other means.

Business men of this city always have realized that the farmers' welfare was their own. Retail business men of Jacksonville cultivate the friendship of persons living in the rural communities. When times are good on the farms, the improved conditions are reflected in the trade channels of the city. That, in part, appears to be what has happened now. With agriculture also making gains, the rural and urban business barometer is moving upward.

The upward trend has been gradual. Business men can point out no particular week or month when the change took place. But the majority of them have noticed material gains on their lines of activity. The government's figures are not exactly a surprise, but proof of what people have been surmising.

It is highly gratifying to know that conditions are on the upgrade. The next few months and years may bring a revival of business such as has not been witnessed in several decades. A two million dollar increase in business of a city the size of Jacksonville is substantial progress. It is a sign that cannot be denied, and one that should convey genuine encouragement.

A Brighter Christmas

The Jacksonville Elks lodge has announced details for its annual Christmas home lighting contest. Again, the Elks are putting up a number of prizes to encourage exemplification of the Christmas spirit through the decoration of homes and lawns. It is a project that has proven highly popular in past years.

Everyone likes to see homes at Christmas time cheerful, inside and out. Multi-colored lights, miniature Christmas trees and other unique decorations, make the city more attractive during the holiday. They provide an atmosphere that everyone enjoys.

The Elks will offer a grand prize for the best decorated home, and others for the more artistically decorated homes in each ward. The contest is certain to result in interest in home decorations that otherwise would not be fully aroused.

With scores of decorated homes, and attractive decorations in the business district, Jacksonville will wait the coming of Christmas in its best dress.

The King Abdicates

The average American is sorry King Edward abdicated the English throne. As ruler of the British empire, he was popular not only in his own domain, but in many other countries. America always has held Edward in admiration.

The King fell in love with an American born woman. He expressed an intention to marry her. The American way of doing things would have been for the King to go ahead and marry; nothing could have prevented such a union in this country.

But the English way is different. Tradition, strict laws of a country that has ever bowed to formalities of royalty, stood in the King's way. True to form, the King thought first of his country and his subjects. He would not marry outside of royalty while he remained as King.

So Edward has rejected the right to rule his people. He was faced with making two choices, a sacrifice either way he stepped.

Many Americans hoped that Edward would remain on the throne, and go through with the marriage. This, however, was asking too much. Edward, himself, made his decision with the best interests of his country at heart.

Jesse Sets an Example

Jesse Owens, the great colored athlete from Ohio State university, who returned a many times winner of prizes at the Olympic games in Berlin, has since shown a good trait which goes to prove that he has not lost any balance by his triumphs on the cinder track.

The Owens family came from the state of Alabam'. Down in that country colored folks ordinarily don't have much of this world's goods. Many of them live in small cabins, they spend their days in the cotton fields or at other menial labor; they wear rough clothes, eat rough food and are subjected to hardships that the average person in the north does not experience.

Pop and Mom Owens had a little better house to live in when they migrated to Cleveland, but it still wasn't much to brag about, as the home of a future world's champion.

Returning home with his trunkful of medals, Jesse had plenty of opportunities to make easy money—and he did. It is reputed that he has already earned $50,000 in various ways since his return to America a month or more ago.

Like Red Grange, another athletic hero, Jesse first though of his home folks. He went right back to Cleveland and bought his parents a fine home—eleven rooms in it, hardwood floors, modern plumbing, and all that. Pop and Mom Owens had never dreamed of dwelling in such a mansion. And when they had the place all stocked up with nice furniture, the pleasure of the elder Owenses was a sight to see. "It tickles me to see how happy Mom is now," said Jesse.

But Jesse has a wife, besides his father and mother. He has ordered plans drawn for a new house for the Missus, and he says she will boss that job, for she will think of a lot of things he has not time to think of, now that he is a show actor as well as a runner and jumper.

The "Model Village"

The United States government hasn't gone so far as to call it a Utopia, but one of its newest ventures is the design of a "model village." This is being built now on the rolling woodland near Milwaukee, Wis., by nearly 2,200 workers who are striving to complete the Federal Resettlement administration's $8,000,000.

The "model village" of Greendale is expected to be ready for the first "model villagers" by next spring. This village is not the largest of the Resettlement administration's similar projects, but Greendale will embrace more individual houses than the "Greenbelt" towns under construction at Greenhills near Cincinnati, and Greenbelt, near Berwyn, Md.

The project near Milwaukee is in line with the government's belief that one of the basic industries which can point the way to recovery is the housing industry.

Of the 750 housing units to be built in the town, 380 will be separate houses. In all, 518 individual buildings will be erected. They will be surrounded by trees, parks and gardens.

Married people are preferred in the "model village," but provisions will be made for bachelors, also. Rents probably will range from $22.50 to $35 per month for the larger units, which will be sufficient to pay the cost of operation of the community.

The prime reason for construction of this "model village" is to demonstrate a perfectly planned village and at the same time help relieve an acute housing shortage in Milwaukee and neighboring towns, as well as to furnish employment.

While the novelty in living in such a place will no doubt attract many persons, we cannot believe that life will be any happier there than in other villages and towns. After all, it is the people who make a village.

The sucess of the Wisconsin project hinges upon the kind of people who populate it, rather than the style of architecture, the symetry of the lawns, or the beauty of the streets.

Chapin Bank Given Authority to Pay On Waived Deposits

Edward J. Barrett, auditor of public accounts, announced Wednesday that he had given authority to the Chapin State Bank of Chapin, Ill., to pay a dividend of 10 per cent on waived deposits.

The dividend amounts to $5,514.80.

Following the banking moratorium of March, 1933, the depositors of the bank waived 50 per cent of their deposits, amounting to $55,175.74, to enable the bank to resume business.

Little Tumors in Nose May Cause Infection; Should Be Removed

BY DR. MORRIS FISHBEIN
Editor, Journal of the American Medical Association, and of Hygeia, the Health Magazine

The lining of the nose, like that of any other part of the body, may be subjected to some of the changes in tissue which cause disturbances.

Sometimes the little cells which form the mucous membrane of the nose will overgrow. When they do, little tumors are formed which hang down into the nose and interfere with breathing.

Because they obstruct the flow of materials from the nose, they may aid in setting up infection. It is, therefore, desirable that such little tumors be removed.

Sometimes the blood vessels in the nose will form in little knots exactly as they do within the skin. Or a blood vessel in the nose occasionally may become dilated and varicose. Any physical disturbance of this kind will result in symptoms, and, as a result, the growth, or disordered structure, will have to be removed.

It is, of course, possible for a growth in the nose, like one elsewhere in the body, finally to become malignant and begin growing so rapidly and viciously that it destroys the tissue around it. This is the nature of cancer.

The chief symptom, whenever there is obstruction of any kind in the nose, is the secondary infection. Eventually such infection becomes purulent and offensive.

If it involves the blood vessels, there may also be bleeding. The glands of the body help to remove infectious material, so that whenever such infection or obstruction is present, nearby glands become enlarged.

The causes of growths and tumors of various kinds are not definitely known, but some contributory factors are recognized. Some authorities are convinced that polyps never occur except when there is infection.

It is not possible for the average person to diagnose the presence of nasal polyps for himself. The doctor examines the interior of the nose by looking into the nasal cavity. He will stretch the nostrils and, by means of a special light, be able to view the most minute changes in membranes.

Polyps and tumors are sometimes removed by surgery, by use of caustic substances, or by the use of radium. Each of these methods requires the services of an expert equipped with necessary apparatus and materials.

Sometimes a new crop of polyps forms after one crop has been removed. People in whom such polyps form continually will find that there is nothing to do but to keep on having them removed. In most instances, however, application of radium will prevent return.

There are instances on record in which the removal of a polyp or similar tumor has been followed by the disappearance of chronic infection in the nose; in other instances, by the disappearance of asthmatic symptoms or similar conditions.

As has already been mentioned, polyps will occasionally form in the sinuses as well as in the nose itself. Diagnosis and removal of the polyps from the sinuses obviously are more difficult than is removal from the nose.

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By RODNEY DUTCHER
(Journal-Courier Washington Correspondent

Washington — Any correspondent who didn't at some time turn his typewriter loose on the affair of Mrs. Simpson, King Edward VIII, and the British Empire would be laying off one of the biggest stories of the century.

American statesmen spend all their time talking about that astonishing imbroglio instead of devoting themselves to their proper duty of giving a correspondent his quota of news tips.

Some newspapermen have it figured that the only dispatches they can write which will get any space in their newspapers will have to substitute the name of Mrs. Simpson for those of all the actual characters involved. So you mustn't be surprised any day to see a story from Washington reading more or less like this:

"The supreme court today held the Simpson act unconstitutional, deciding the case of Simpson versus Simpson, in another 5-to-4 decision which was immediately denounced by Senator Simpson of Idaho as a blow at human liberties. Five conservative members—Chief Justice Simpson and Justices Simpson, Simpson, Simpson, and Simpson—lined up against the four liberals—Simpson, Simpson, Simpson, and Simpson—to hold that the rights of Mrs. Simpson, the plaintiff, had been invaded under the due process clause.

"President Simpson, asked to comment at his regular White House press conference, said he would have nothing to say pending a conference with Attorney General Simpson and Secretaries Simpson and Simpson, the cabinet officers most directly concerned."

You can see what a lot of possibilities the idea has.

• • •

Fear Empire's Disruption

Presumably in common with most other world capitals where speech and press are still free, Washington is divided between the "Wally for Queen" and the "Stop Simpson" movements.

There is a heavy body of opinion, however, which holds that the British Empire has been threatened with disruption and that anything which tends to weaken the British Empire is all to the bad for the United States as well as for the rest of the world and the beleaguered institution of democracy.

Insiders of international politics, although they may sympathize with Edward and believe Stanley Baldwin made a mistake in bringing the Simpson issue to a head when it might have been staved off, say that in addition to the war danger factor, Baldwin knows some things about the empire which are not commonly realized over here.

• • •

Dominions Losing Faith

Confidential reports say some of the dominions are growing more doubtful about the value of the thin ties which hold them together with Britain, especially since England bowed to the fact of Italian aggression in Ethiopia and again to alleged German-Italian intervention in Spain.

If these reports are true, it is obvious that the constitutional explosion over the king's proposed marriage, with its repercussions through the seven seas, came at the worst possible time.

At the League of Nations session where the question of recognizing Ethiopia as a league member came up, representatives of New Zealand, Canada, South Africa, and the Irish Free State protested strongly the British position that Ethiopia shouldn't be admitted.

The incident was said to be significant of the fact that some dominions, at least, are no longer as sure as they once were of British ability to provide naval and military help in time of war.

• • •

Important to U. S.

Doubts are said to be especially strong in Australia and New Zealand. The British government has recently been trying to dissolve those doubts.

If you realize that American foreign policy is postulated on the theory that the future virtually makes it mandatory on this country to be chummier with Great Britain than with any other major power, you'll see why the men who carry out that policy have been vitally interested as to the success with which the British solve their problem of a king and his friend.

"ALL-BRAN KEEPS ME IN SHAPE EVERY DAY"

"When I had eaten a heavy breakfast, I would feel logy. After a couple of days of this, I would have to take a laxative.

"One morning I had a dish of ALL-BRAN. Believe me, it beats any laxative, as it keeps me in shape every day."—Wm. C. Billings, 1330 19th St., Denver, Colorado.

Why put up with half-sick days, when a delicious cereal will make you feel so good? Because ALL-BRAN has "bulk" which absorbs moisture within the body. Then gently sponges out your system, wipes away the listlessness, the "blues," the headaches.

Scientific tests prove this natural food is both safe and effective—worlds better than taking patent medicines. ALL-BRAN is guaranteed. Take it a week. If not satisfactory, your money will be refunded by the Kellogg Company.

Serve as a cereal or use in cooking. ALL-BRAN also supplies vitamin B and iron. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Announce Casts for I.C. Dramatic Club Series of One-Acts

Plays Will Be Given After Christmas Vacation at Little Theater

Casts for "Miss Fanny's Bomb," by Mary Wolff Thompson, and "The Jokative Man," by Loren Miller, were announced Wednesday by Illinois college Dramatic club directors.

Harry Story, Jacksonville sophomore, has been given a leading role in "Miss Fanny's Bomb," and John McGary, a freshman from Jacksonville, appearing in his second I. C. Dramatic club production, has been assigned a part in "The Jokative Man." Mar Norbury, also of Jacksonville, plays a supporting role in "The Jokative Man."

The plays will be given the week of Jan. 9. Rehearsals will begin today, and continue until Christmas vacation. Final polishing-up will be done on the return to school Jan. 5.

The cast of "Miss Fanny's Bomb" is made up entirely of veteran Dramatic Club performers. The title role of Miss Fanny will be taken by Miss Betty Marsh, East Moline, senior who has taken leads in "Gold in the Hills" and "The Slump." Miss Ramelle Smith, '37, a Freeport girl who has directed two successful plays this year, "Colombine," and "Farewell, Cruel World," steps behind the footlights to play Miss Clara.

Male roles will be acted by Karl Monroe, '37, Collinsville, and Story, who were teamed as the country bumpkins in "Colombine." They will act the roles of Papa Bancroft and Eddie Pratt.

Ralph Smith, '37, Granite City, dominates "The Jokative Man" as the sheriff. McGary will play John Tomkins. The female lead will be taken by Miss Margaret Kenoyer, Brook. Commissioner Landis Rules Young Bob Feller Property Of The Cleveland Indians

New York, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis ruled 18-year old Bob Feller the property of the Cleveland Indians today in a long-deferred decision which cost Feller perhaps $100,000 and set a new precedent in baseball law.

Simultaneously, Landis directed Cleveland to pay $7,500 to the Des Moines club of the Western league. Des Moines protested last July 7 that its efforts to obtain Feller had been frustrated by Cleveland's signing him in violation of the major-minor league agreement.

Landis based his decision on the recent relaxation of this agreement by both major and minor league officials.

Several major league owners were predicting tonight that what remains of the major-minor league agreement will be scrapped entirely sooner or later.

Landis ruled that when Cyril Slapnicka, an official of the Cleveland club, signed Feller to a contract of the Fargo-Moorhead club of the Northern league he did so in violation of a baseball law which forbade major league clubs to sign sandlot players.

Since then, however, both minor and major leagues have amended this law to permit major league officials to "recommend" a sandlot player to a minor league club. In effect, the minor league club becomes a mere stop-over for the player enroute to the major league club that "recommended" him.

The decision brought to an end one of the most dramatic chapters in the recent history of the game. Feller first came to the attention of the general public when he pitched three innings of an exhibition game for the Indians against the St. Louis Cardinals July 6. He struck out eight batters, Pepper Martin and Joe Medwick twice. The following day Lee Keyser, president of the Des Moines club, issued his protest.

On the strength of his showing against the Cards, Feller was signed to a Cleveland contract and on Sept. 13 against the Athletics he tied Dizzy Dean's single game strike-out record of 17, setting up a new American league standard at the same time. Previously he had struck out 15 men in a game against the Browns. He finished the season with five games won and three lost. He faced 227 batters and struck out 76.

Landis' decision pointed to one of the ironies of the case. Under the rules, the commissioner pointed out, Cleveland could have obtained Feller's services without it developing into a "case" at all.

"Had Cleveland taken the precaution to become the owner of the Fargo-Moorhead club," Landis said, "and to have Slapnicka designated as vice-president of that club before he signed Feller, there would never have been a Feller case."

Deep, Dark Dean Mystery

To which team, if any, Dizzy Dean eventually will be traded, is known by these two master minds of baseball, Sam Breadon, left, president of the St. Louis Cardinals, and Branch Rickey, right, vice president of the club. The two men who control the vast interests of the Cardinal chain system were snapped discussing baseball deals during the major league meeting in New York.

Heavyweight Title Question Again Up

Schmeling Arrives in U.S. to Look After Interests

New York.—(AP)—With the arrival today of Max Schmeling the heavyweight situation was expected to start sizzling again.

Der Maxie was coming for the purpose of sewing up James J. Braddock for a heavyweight title fight next summer and to toss a monkey wrench or so into the plans of Promoter Herman Taylor for a prior meeting between Braddock and Joe Louis.

The New York State Athletic commission confidently expected to see a deal closed for a title fight at tomorrow's meeting, but there were many ifs and buts to be threshed out.

First, Schmeling was sure to insist that any contract he signs with Braddock prohibits the champion from risking injury by fighting anybody before he meets the German. The commission was expected to support him in this stand.

That may mean Braddock and his manager, Joe Gould, will refuse to sign and close with Taylor for a non-decision contest with Louis at Atlantic City.

On the other hand, Schmeling may not be so keen to sign if the commission stipulates that he promise, to the tune of $25,000 forfeit, that if he wins the title he'll defend it here within a year.

Strikes to Spare

Watch for Hidden Pin in Shooting Spares on Left of Alley

BY SKANG MERCURIO
World's Highest Average Bowler

While the ultimate goal of every bowler is a perfect 300 game, striking every frame isn't everything—unless a bowler can mow down the majority of his spares, he'll have a hard time beating 150.

For a right-handed bowler, spares on the left side of the alley are easy. He should throw his regular hook ball starting from his regular position on the slides, and aim for the pocket, if he has a spare up that offers such a target.

The 2-5-8 pin spare . . . No. 8 pin is the hidden maple in this shot, and the bowler must roll his ball so that it hits in the above position to clear off all three pins.

Some spares are foolers, in that they have a "hidden pin" standing which a bowler, not on the alert, is apt to miss. Such a spare is the 2-5-8 stand. The hidden pin here is No. 8.

In making this, a pocket hit between the 2 and 5, with a shade favoring No. 2 pin, will get No. 8. However, a hit that registers thin on No. 2 will leave No. 8 standing.

Making spares isn't really difficult, except when a split bobs up. They need only the same amount of concentration that rolling for a strike does.

Routt Tackles Cathedral In Springfield Gym; Prep Teams Lined Up For Busy Week-End

Local Games Tonight

Bluffs and Petersburg at I. S. D.
Pittsfield at J. H. S.
Routt at Cathedral (Springfield).

All of Jacksonville's prep basketball teams will be busy tonight, and almost all of the prep teams from this area will be engaged in some port of basketball call the second week-end of serious caging.

Jacksonville high's surprising Crimsons, who have toppled Chandlerville and New Berlin thus far, will play Pittsfield, a team which suffered a surprising set-back at the hands of Winchester Wednesday night, while Illinois School for the Deaf stages a big basketball night for its patrons by playing a double header against Bluffs, and then topping the evening off with a game against Petersburg. Routt high will go to Springfield for its first game against opponents in the Catholic State league, meeting the Cathedral team in another double header to be played on the Knights of Columbus court.

There are plenty of highlights on the basketball schedule. Murrayville's Shadows and White Hall will tangle, Winchester goes over to play Leo Duke's Feitshans Fliers, and Greenfield and Jerseyville tangle in a southern division Illinois Valley conference battle.

Burns Explains Double Header

Despite the fact that his team hasn't gained a victory yet this season, Coach S. Robey Burns is not discouraged. He pointed out yesterday that he has 30 boys out for his team this year, and then declared that the amount of material required considerable study before it could be classified into teams.

There was a slight mix-up on the schedule, with both Petersburg and Bluffs getting contracts to play the Tigers tonight, but the Tiger coach isn't perturbed. Boys who have failed to come up to the first squad qualification will be given a chance in the game with the second string team from Bluffs, scheduled to start at 6:30, and then five boys will be picked out to face the Bluffs team in the first of the double header scheduled to begin at 7:30. Five more boys will be assigned to the task of holding down Hubert "Mose" Pearce's Petersburg high team in the final game, which probably will get underway about 8:30.

Burns is expecting a better team than the Tigers had last year, but working out the right combinations to produce the best results all takes time. He doesn't know whether he has reached the right conclusion yet, but he indicated that the right selection will come from Dhondt, Schraeder, Schmidt, Millick, Long, Cress, Clement, Belford, E. Wilson, Hogue, Mohe, and Troger. These are the boys who will have their chances tonight, and some of them probably will appear in both varsity games.

Three of the boys, Clement, Long and Cress, are Jacksonville boys.

Walker Hopes for Win

Coach Frank Walker expressed hopes for the third straight Crimson win of the season, but he is not confident that it will come tonight. He points to the large margins by which Pittsfield won from Pearl and Milton, and discounts the loss to Winchester. Pittsfield will be ready for the Crimsons he declared, and may be the first team to beat the Crimsons this year. Pittsfield handed the Crimsons one of the few defeats they suffered last year.

The Crimson mentor will stick to the same line-up which started both games this year, and with a little more confidence as the result of the showing of some of the reserves in the New Berlin game. Baptist, center, Leeper and Henry, forwards, Johnston and Baldwin guards, will make up the starting line-up with Charles Ketner, Billy Hofmann and Warren Massey as reserves.

Two games are on the card, with the first getting underway about 7:15 p. m. and the second about 8:30.

Baptist Changes Rockets

Routt's line-up for the game with Cathedral will be changed slightly, Coach Wallace Baptist said yesterday, with Harmon moving up to a first team position in order to gain more height for the entire team. Bernard Shanahan and Bernard Ferry, forward and center, and Beerup and Hanley, guards, will make up the starting quintet, with Greg Gaitens serving as utility man.

The second string Rockets will be composed of Bill Gaitens, Hohman, McHatton, Henry, Maloney and Johnson.

Other games tonight include:
Murrayville at White Hall.
Winchester at Feitshans.
Roodhouse at Riverton.
Greenfield at Jerseyville.
Palmyra at Chapin.
Franklin at Tallula.
Virginia at Chandlerville.
Ashland at Bath.
New Salem and Rockport at Milton.

—:FAN BREEZES:—

There will be steel bankboards in Routt high's new basketball emporium, Coach Wallace Baptist told us the other day. The steel bankboards are the latest thing out, he said, and come at a pretty handsome figure.

The gymnasium at the new parochial school will be completed before the remainder of the building, Baptist said, and probably will be opened before the remainder of the structure is ready. Workmen are using the gymnasium as a place in which to mix mortar and the heating equipment already has been into use.

That's different from the present place of practice for the Rockets. They get out in Liberty Hall now and do their romping around, but a large enough part of the heating plant has been torn out of this building to make the remainder useless.

Routt is waiting to see what happens to the J. H. S.-Converse game before making plans for its scheduled home appearance against Quincy academy here Dec. 19. J. H. S. may dedicate a gymnasium over in Springfield that night, but if Converse is unable to play at home, they are coming over to Jacksonville for the game.

If the Converse gym is finished, the Rockets will play Quincy on the David Prince boards. If it isn't, Routt will try to have the game moved to Quincy, and failing in this, may bring the Little Hawks over here for a big basketball party at the J. H. S. gym that night.

Co-incident with the opening of the I. S. D. home schedule tonight, Coach S. Robey Burns points out ten of the boys who went over to Athens last year are no longer on the basketball squad. They are Wells, Baumann, Arman, Rajski, Zehnder, Goben, Otten, Witzcak and Wildrich.

That's a considerrble turn-over in basketball players, and the Tigers, although they have felt the loss, are going to stack up stronger at the end of the season than last year's team, the Tiger coach declares.

J. C. Conant, Murrayville's high's new athletic chief, gets around quite a bit to see rival basketball teams in action. He popped up over at Franklin the other night to find out whether the Flashes had cooked up any new devilment with which to plague his shadows when these two teams get together again.

Franklin has one of the nifteist dressed outfits around this part of the country. The boys have brand new black uniforms, with brilliant orange numbers outlined with white, and orange stripes on the jockey satin trunks also outlined with white. They also have new sweat shirts, of the same color, and the players wear long black socks with orange stripes and black knee guards.

Bluffs doesn't have any new uniforms, but that high school team has one of the best followings of the smaller schools. There were about 100 fans who accompanied the team to Griggsville the other night and about 60 of them hopped into automobiles and trekked down to Franklin the other night.

College fans who have seen Carthage teams play, can see the Carthage style sticking out at all corners of the Bluffs team, the result of the work of Coach Carl Morrison. The Bluffs fast break looks exactly like the Carthage fast break of the Morrison days, and the dribble, pivot and pass stuff is some more of the basketball lore Morrison picked up under Coach Lewis Omer and Coach Hub Wagner.

All of the Willard boys, who play with Pittsfield, are brothers, according to Donald Zimmerman, one of the Pittsfield boys now going to college here. "But you got the first name of one of the boys wrong. My brother calls him "Sooner," Zimmerman tells us.

The three brothers on the Pittsfield team are Glenn, Junior and M. according to the box score. M. apparently is "Sooner"—maybe he'd sooner play basketball than eat.

U. OF T. WANTS COACH

Austin, Tex.—(AP)—The University of Texas looked for a football coach today to replace Jack Chevigny formerly of Notre Dame.

J. C. Dolley, chairman, announced the athletic council had accepted Chevigny's request that he not be considered a candidate and would start negotiations with applicants for the vacancy.

Many observers expressed the opinion Ted Twomey, line coach under Chevigny who came here from the University of Kentucky, would succeed Chevigny.

IN JUSTICE COURT

John Utt, Virden, waived preliminary hearing on a statutory charge in the justice of the peace court of C. S. Smith yesterday morning at 9 o'clock. His case was certified to the county court for Dec. 16, 9 a. m.

The defendant gave bond for his appearance at that time.

Greene Farmers On WPA Projects

Two Hundred Aid in Highway Construction; Other News of Community

Carrollton, Ill., Dec. 10.—About 200 Greene county farmers were registered on the drouth-relief program of WPA projects. Most of these registered have been working for the past five weeks on WPA projects. Superintendent of County Highways Paul Fenity has had 70 farmers working on county-wide projects, of road construction. Fenity stated today that orders which became effective Tuesday morning were that the entire 70 would be let out at once. He also expressed the opinion that all of the farmers who were employed on drouth-relief projects of other nature, beside road projects, would be let out this morning. His opinion was that the only exceptions would be farmers who are on direct relief.

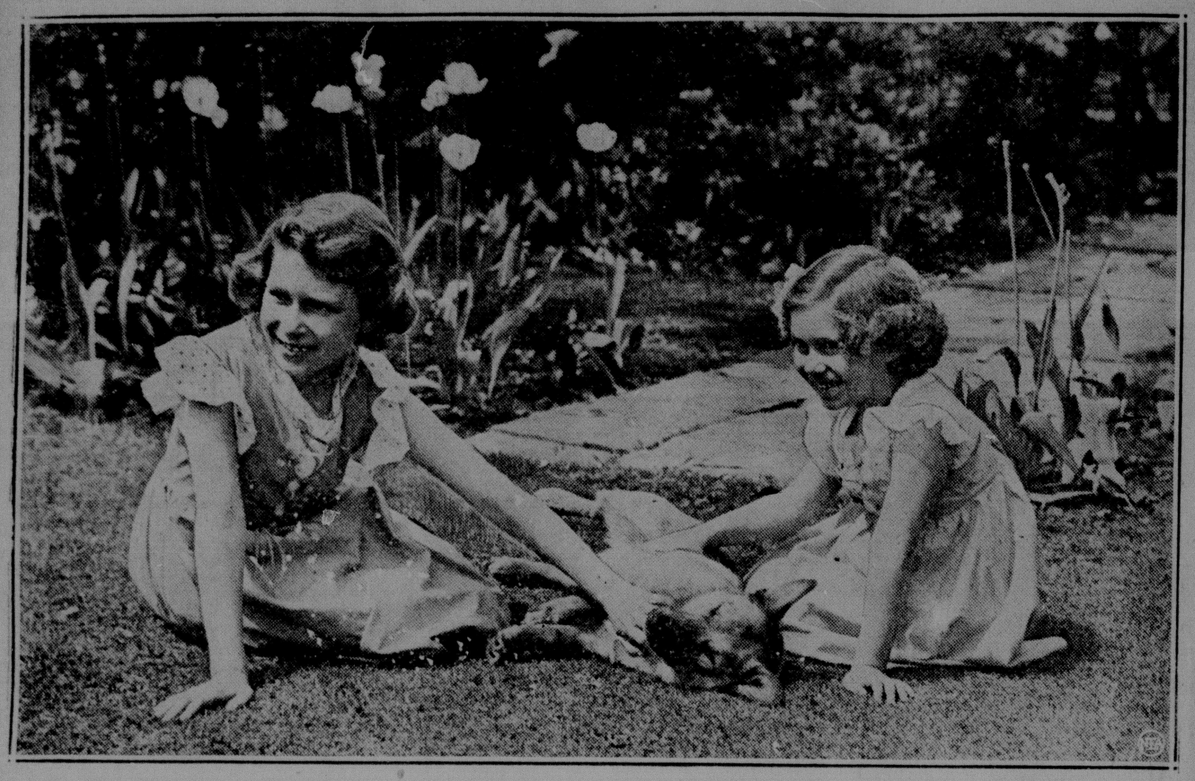
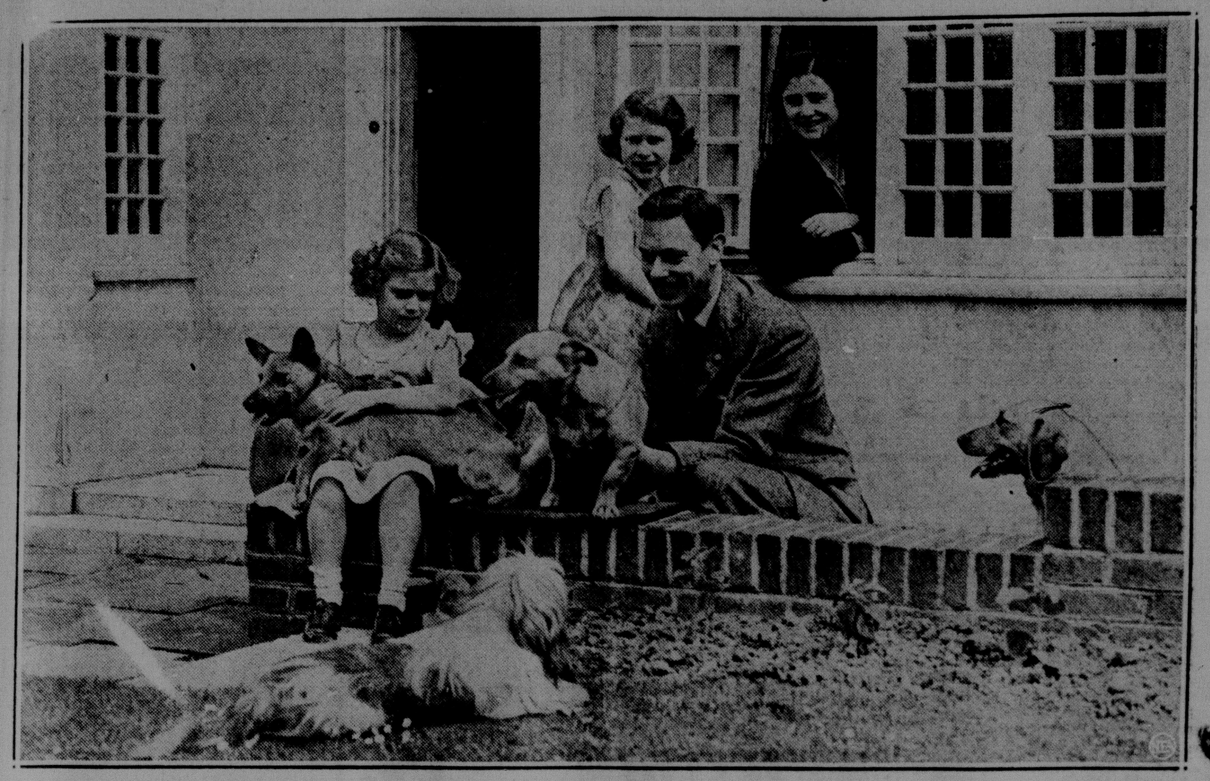
New Ruling Family of Great Britain's Empire



Little concerned over the affairs of state were these two children of the Duke of York when this picture was taken, but today these two youngsters were propelled into the international picture when King Edward VIII, who had not as yet been officially crowned, abdicated the throne in favor of his brother the Duke of York, who will reign as King George VI. For Princess Elizabeth, on the left, the decision of King Edward to give up the throne means an intensive course in training for the queenship, for she will be next in line for succession to the English throne. Her sister, Margaret Rose, is next in line for the title.



Swept into Buckingham Palace by the decision of King Edward VIII to abdicate the most powerful throne in the world today, the Duke of York, to be crowned King George VI, is shown here as he, with his wife and two children, the princesses Margaret Rose and Elizabeth enjoyed the companionship of their dogs at the Windsor Great Park home. The Duchess of York, wife of King George VI, came from Scotland. The family home in London was carefully guarded today in view of possible disturbances.

the risk of gravest injury to the national and imperial interests."

His blunt decision to surrender Britain's throne so he might as an ordinary man become the husband of Wallis Warfield Simpson was given to the realm and world in the historic House of Commons whose walls never before in the history of all England echoed such words as were uttered today.

In the formal document of voluntary abdication he passed the throne on to his younger brother, the present Duke of York, and expressed as his last kingly wish that his ascension speedily would come to pass.

In simple, clear phrases, delivered in the first person, Edward VIII's choice between love and an empire was given to the pages of history:

"I, Edward VIII, of Great Britain, Ireland and the British Dominions beyond the seas, King and Emperor of India, do hereby declare my irrevocable determination to renounce the throne for myself and my descendants, and my desire that effect should be given to this instrument of abdication immediately.

"In token whereof I have hereunto set my hand this tenth day of December, 1936, in the presence of the witnesses whose signatures are subscribed."

(Signed) "Edward, R. I."

Thus did the sixty-eighth king of Britain, at the age of 42, step down from the ancient and honorable throne of his forefathers to join his life and destiny with those of a woman his government told him he must not marry so long as he was king.

His regal mantle fell to the tall, slender Duke of York, home-loving father of two princesses who would be next in line for England's throne. York will be 41 on Dec. 14.

Despite Edward's assurance his decision was "irrevocable," it became increasingly apparent as the night wore on that large sections of the populace still were unwilling to believe he would no longer be their sovereign.

A giant of more than 10,000 persons, in the main good natured, gathered in front of Buckingham Palace and roared:

"Long live King Edward!"

The demonstration followed the act of one man who shouted through a megaphone "Long live King Albert!" —one of the titles the Duke of York might take as king.

The House of Commons, after hearing the momentous words from the man who was king, reconvened at 6 p. m. to consider legislation carrying out Edward's abdication and the succession of the Duke of York.

Signs of parliamentary opposition to the abdication grew during the evening session in which Maxton, as leader of the Independent Socialists, announced he would present an amendment calling upon the House to decline second reading of the bill which would make the Duke of York king.

The representatives of his majesty's subjects, sore of heart, had heard the decision of the man who was uncrowned king of England for 326 days since the death last Jan. 20 of his father, George V.

His love, he told them, meant more to him as a man than the bejewelled crown which was to have been placed on his head next May 12.

The king had spoken.

Ernest A. Simpson, the king's officer Mrs. Simpson divorced so she would be ready to marry Edward, was reported tonight to have himself made a last minute plea to save his sovereign his throne.

With no thought of reconciliation between him and his former wife, friends said, he sought to no avail through intermediaries to persuade Mrs. Simpson to exert her influence against the king's abdication.

After his decision was proclaimed to an empire anxious for these many days on the destiny of its sovereign, the archbishop of Canterbury spoke for many when he arose in the House of Lords and solemnly intoned:

"This is an occasion when our thoughts are too deep for tears, certainly too deep for words."

The grieving Queen Mary, who had reared a son for forty years only to see him reign but 326 days, spent a heart-breaking evening.

To her was only a mother's consolation that she had done what she thought best for her first-born son and pleaded with him to renounce his love for what she felt were the dictates of his throne and subjects.

'BERTIE' FACES THE CHALLENGE OF EDWARD VIII

One hour later, Edward sealed his resolve to quit the throne, signing the fateful document that set him free to marry Wallis Warfield Simpson.

At 3:23, a few minutes before Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin arose in the House of Commons, the Duke sped by motorcar from Fort Belvedere to Windsor Castle on a mission which may have been to make his vows before the grave of his father.

Then he returned to London, to the circle of his family—the two little princesses, "Lilybet," and Margaret Rose, and his wife, who now becomes the first commoner-born Queen of England since the reign of the profligate Henry the eighth.

Pope Pius Reads of King's Abdication

Vatican City, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Pope Pius XI was stated tonight to have spent a comfortable evening, reading with interest the news of King Edward VIII's abdication, after a day in which his holiness left his bed for the first time in his six-day illness.

The pontiff recited the rosary and chatted with his secretaries.

Prelates said he was gratified the British crisis had closed without undermining the throne and without permitting a divorcee to become queen of England.

A reliable Vatican source said he suffered a relapse and expressed the opinion he never would be able to walk again if he recovered from his present crisis.

His heart action has been irregular and he suffers from the infirmities of old age as well as partial paralysis of the legs.

Well-informed persons said tonight the 79-year old holy father's condition was one of "stasis"—that is, stagnation of the blood.

These sources said it was useless to think of the pope's leaving his bed permanently for some time.

RECIPROCATION

London, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Capt. Edward Algernon Fitzroy, the speaker of the House of Commons who read King Edward's message of abdication to the house today, is himself a descendant of the Stuart Kings who were ousted by Edward's ancestors.

When Life Was Joyous for King and His Friend

No hint of the storm that soon was to rage about them was evident when this picture of King Edward VIII and Mrs. Wallis Simpson was taken last summer, during their attendance at the Ascot races. The photo, radioed from London to New York City, shows the pair in merry mood during an interval between races.

SALESMANSHIP IS SUBJECT OF PICTURE AT KIWANIS MEETING

"Along Main Street" is the subject of a picture shown at the Thursday meeting of the Jacksonville Kiwanis club, by T. M. Coyle of this city. The picture exemplified qualities necessary to successful salesmanship.

In brief remarks Mr. Coyle told the clubmen that he considered newspaper advertising the most valuable aid in salesmanship. He told of the program carried out by the Coca-Cola company during the depression which brought increased sales. The increased sales were the result of increased advertising.

Two members were admitted to membership of the club. They are Gilmore Lindstromberg and Oscar F. Galloway. Harry W. Fortcamp of this city was a guest at the meeting.

Council of League In Private Session

Geneva, Dec. 10.—(AP)—The news of King Edward VIII's abdication today thrust the Spanish tragedy momentarily into the background as the League of Nations council sat in private session.

With their minds occupied by the events in London, the council members did little except arrange for Julio Alvarez del Vayo, Spanish Socialist commissar-general of state, to outline the Spanish government's reasons in its warning that the Spanish crisis threatens to precipitate international complications.

Authorittive Spanish sources stated the Spanish Valencia-Madrid government desired especially to determine what aims, if any, Italy and Germany have with regard to Spain.

On the heels of the joint Anglo-French appeal to Germany, Italy, Portugal and Russia to join Britain and France in seeking mediation and arranging for a Spanish plebiscite, these sources said they deemed foreign mediation dangerous.

NUSSPICKEL SPEAKS AT GIRARD MEETING

Coach Raymond Nusspickel of Illinois college delivered the principal address at the dedication of the Girard High school gymnasium Tuesday, using as his subject, "The Values of Athletics in Education."

Nusspickel pointed out that the benefits to be derived from clean sport, aside from the well known attributes of development of mind and body were manifold.

"A well rounded program of athletics affects the individual student in many ways," the coach said. He went on to list generosity, mercy, kindness, honesty, sportsmanship, recreation, provision for leisure time, courage, and enthusiasm.

"One of the most important of these," the speaker said, "is enthusiasm—enthusiasm and spirit that is essential to any well rounded educational program."

Pointing out that the individual attributes could be lumped into one great effect, that of benefit to the community, Nusspickel stressed the fact that the greater socialbility aroused by an athletic program among the individuals in the community would lead to a lasting good that was intangible but nevertheless important.

SHORT REIGN OF EDWARD SET NEW ERA PRECEDENTS

The day after King George V's death, the new ruler hopped into his airplane and flew to London. He was the first King in British history to travel by air.

He cut the royal mourning period by three months.

He travelled in an ordinary first-class railway carriage instead of by special private train, as royal usage decreed.

He startled London by walking right out the front door of Buckingham palace through the streets to the office of the Duchy of Cornwall.

When dignataries of the world gathered in London for the funeral of his father, he met them and talked with them on international problems.

He shattered precedent by using the personal pronoun "I" instead of the traditional royal "we" in addressing parliament.

His last act before the crisis over Mrs. Simpson broke around his uncrowned head was his promise during his tour of the "black areas" in Wales that "something will be done." Cabinet ministers rubbed their eyes. Traditionally, it is the government, not the king, who pledges the government to action.

"Die hards" were startled and amazed by the smashing of traditions, usages and customs.

Yet, as they looked back on the career of their young sovereign, they saw the handwriting on the wall had been there all the time.

The king, as Prince of Wales, bowed much to tradition—but he also left the imprint of a fresh, active mind never too linked with the past that it wasn't open to new things.

Gov. Alf Landon in Collision of Truck, Passenger Express

Liberal, Mo., Dec. 10.—(AP)—A fast St. Louis and San Francisco passenger train bearing Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas, defeated presidential nominee, homeward from a Florida vacation struck a 1,600-gallon oil truck here late today, injuring three men, one critically.

Charles Dowler, 45, Liberal, driver of the truck, was dangerously burned when blazing oil swept over him.

Harry Haynes, Fort Scott, Kas., engineer of the train and Arthur Fetters, Fort Scott fireman, were burned and bruised as they jumped from the locomotive when flaming oil sprayed over them.

None of the passengers was reported injured.

Landon descended from the train and with other passengers watched the blazing wreckage. Later he chartered a motor car and proceeded to Fort Scott.

ECCENTRIC

Indianapolis, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Police wondered today what to make of this one:

Miss Rose Morgan reported that late last night a soft speaking, neatly dressed man pressed a revolver against her side as she walked along a street near her home and queried, "May I dance with you?"

Miss Morgan said she fled without answering.

HALF-ACRE in EDEN

BY ROBERT DICKSON

BEGIN HERE TODAY

MARCIA CANFIELD, daughter of wealthy PHILIP CANFIELD, meets BRUCE McDOUGALL, artist, shortly after the mysterious disappearance of FRANK KENDRICK, to whom Marcia had been engaged. When shortages are found in Kendrick's business accounts, Marcia is more shocked than heartbroken. She realizes she was never in love with him.

McDougall is attentive until DOROTHY OSBORN, who dislikes Marcia, leads him to believe Marcia is engaged to another man.

There is a bank holdup and police commandeer the Canfield car to follow the bandits. The car is wrecked and both Marcia and her father are injured. McDougall, driving with Dorothy, arrives on the scene and takes Marcia and her father to the hospital.

Their injuries are slight. Although Marcia's arm is in a sling, she takes part in an amateur play a short time afterward. A New York producer attends the performance and offers Dorothy a part in his new production.

Marcia gives a party for Dorothy. Bruce goes with JOAN and MIKE BRADFORD. He and HELEN WADDELL, close friend of Marcia's, overhear a gossiper discussing Marcia's engagement to Kendrick.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVI

HELEN said with cold anger, "Let's get out of here."

Obediently McDougall rose and followed her into the hall, out of hearing of the two in the room beyond the library. Through the archway ahead they could see the dancers, the groups of talkers around the walls. Midway down the hall Helen paused.

"You'll wonder what it's all about," she said.

McDougall gave his best imitation of a man who does not require to be told a thing.

"It's just a matter of petty, local gossip," said Helen. "I'm not suggesting you want to be in on it; but I ought to explain why it made me so angry.

"That's Mrs. Charles Horton whom Mike is talking with back there. She can't let up over something that happened here some months ago. There was a sequel to the thing that happened, and as far as I can see it concerned Marcia alone."

* * *

IT was all considerably mystifying, McDougall reflected as he walked toward Dorothy Osborn's house late on Monday afternoon. Dorothy was to sit for his sketch, and he was to stay for dinner—the dinner he had missed before, Dorothy had said without rancor.

Dorothy was waiting for him—a cordial Dorothy, but he had never known her otherwise—in the now attractive living room, but he had never known it when it was unattractive. Mrs. Osborn, when he entered, came in to greet him and then retired to kitchen duties.

"I won't pretend," said Dorothy, "that I am anything but thrilled. This is the first time I've ever appeared in anything but photographs, and most of them were snapshots, come to think of it. Please remember that I'm having a species of stage fright."

"It's the first time," laughed McDougall, "that I've ever been allowed to sketch an actress, so if you're shivering from nervousness just remember that I am, too. . . . Don't imagine that I believe this sketch will be a first-rate job, because I'm not trying to sell the idea that I'm a first-rate artist. It's just something I wanted to do, and I'll do it the best I can."

"With the material at hand," supplied Dorothy. "Aren't we h u m b l e, though?—and now where and how do I sit?"

"At ease!" he ordered. "Forget the sketch. Just sit and talk."

With his sketching block on crossed knees, he began the work, with frequent pauses while he studied his subject.

"Did you enjoy the party?" asked Dorothy.

"Very much."

"Something else nice happened to me there," she continued, "after you'd offered to do the sketch. I couldn't help telling a few people about that. . . . Do you know Ralph Hanson Jr.? He's a grand kid. Works all the time to help his family, and stands well in school besides. He does some really beautiful things in wood in his school shop class, and when he heard about the sketch—he was at the party, if you noticed, though not much in evidence—he asked me to ask you if he could make a frame for it, and if so, what kind. I thought it was awfully sweet of him."

* * *

M'DOUGALL smiled in appreciation.

"That was neighborly," he said, his attention mainly on a line that defied him. "That's something you get in small towns, in spite of . . ." He broke off.

"In spite of what?" Asked Dorothy with amusement. "Our country ways?"

He had reddened slightly.

"Or in spite of the same neighborly people being gossipy?" Dorothy pursued, with what inner prompting McDougall could not guess.

"You've been hearing things," she went on. "From this person about that person, and turn about. Well,"—with a confessional honesty which he could not suspect—"there is gossip, of course. I don't know whether it's more or less than in the city; perhaps it is simply more apparent where there are fewer competing distractions. . . . I have known of some cruel things."

McDougall regretting the subject, bent over his sketch, abandoning for the time his frequent appraising glances at his model.

"For instance," Dorothy continued, "there's a girl in town whom, to be frank, I never appreciated until recently. She was rather the victim of gossip by persons who considered themselves affected, and even of others who had no real interest at all."

Marcia, of course. Wherever he turned, there was a reflection of Marcia.

"That's a bad start," he said harshly. "Let's begin again and get it right."

He had found on the drawing block, in the outline of Dorothy Osborn's face, the eyes of Marcia Canfield.

* * *

"SOMETHING," said McDougall to himself as he walked homeward, "has done away with what I used to consider my sense of humor. I used to have a different perspective. Sometimes hope and realization, sometimes hope and disappointment, but never, by George, such hugging of a secret sorrow to my aching bosom."

He passed the street on which, two blocks down, Mike and Joan lived. It was not yet 11 o'clock. He turned and went toward their house.

Joan opened the door.

"Welcome," she said. "Come in and witness the homicide."

"What's going on?" asked McDougall.

"Just like her mother," shouted Mike from the living room. "Loses an argument and wants to kill the winner."

"It's Home versus Career," said Joan.

"What? Are you looking for a job?"

"Not my career. Mike's."

"How is home hurting Mike's career?"

"Well," said Joan, "I'd like to buy a house, whereas Mike has a stupid idea that he . . ."

"Hold everything!" interrupted Mike. "I have another idea!"

"He has another stupid idea," Joan amended.

"Wait a minute," said Mike. "Wait—I'll be right back. This makes it perfect!"

"Something," said Joan as he disappeared, "like two negatives making a positive, I suppose. But I mustn't complain. Everybody has a cross to bear."

Elks Sponsor Christmas Home Lighting Contest; $50 Offered In Prizes

Twenty-one prizes for the best decorated homes in Jacksonville at Christmas time are offered by the Jacksonville Elks lodge, which yesterday announced plans for its annual Christmas Home Lighting contest. Fifty dollars in cash will be distributed to the citizens who by use of either interior or exterior decorations make their homes an object of admiration by Yuletide lighting effects.

The Journal and Courier Company, which for several years has assisted the Elks in sponsoring the contest, again is cooperating in compiling the entry list.

While cash prizes are acceptable to the average person, officials of the Elks lodge believe that the community's participation in the Christmas lighting contest each year is more than mercenary. Many citizens wish to give their homes a "Christmasy" atmosphere by the use of artistic decorations. It is then no additional trouble to enter the Elks' lighting contest. Only homes that have been officially entered in the contest will be considered by the judges.

Lighting effects may be used in the windows, on the porches, on the lawns or even on the roofs. But in all instances, the decorations must be easily visible from the street to participate in the contest.

Lights Inside or Outside

Jacksonville's residence districts have for several years been thickly dotted with beautifully decorated homes during the Christmas season. Many of these decorations are elaborate; others simple in design, yet with artistic appeal that catches the eyes of all who pass. There are no particular rules for decorating a home—just make it beautiful, give it a holiday attire any way you please. But there are rules governing other features of the contest, and these should be read and followed to the letter.

Lighted Christmas trees usually are a popular decoration. Soft-glowing wreaths of other hues have been used with striking effect by many householders in dressing up their premises for the holiday season. It is the effect that counts, and originality alone can work out the various plans of decoration.

Disinterested judges will be secured by the Elks to view the homes entered in competition, and make the awards.

Committee Appointed

Charles H. Joy, Exalted Ruler of the Elks, announced yesterday the appointment of Walter DeShara as chairman of this year's Christmas Home Lighting Contest. Other members of the committee announced by the Exalted Ruler are Carl Newport, Chief of Police Frank Kiloran, Dan T. Cloud and Dr. A. H. Dollear.

Before drawing plans for the contest, details were discussed by Mr. Joy, Denham Harney, Elks Secretary, and other officials. All were enthusiastic in belief that this year's contest will attract a larger number of entires than ever before.

A grand prize of $10 will be given for the best decorated residence in the city. Five dollar first prizes will be awarded in each of the four wards, with second, third, fourth and fifth in proportion.

Contest Dec. 20 to Jan. 1.

The rules state that all entrants must display lights and decorations during the period between Dec. 20 and January 1, inclusive.

Entries must be made on the official blank published in the Journal and Courier, beginning today, and mailed or taken to the newspaper offices.

Entries will be received until midnight Dec. 24, after which the contest will be closed, but the decorations and lights must continue nightly until Jan. 1, as judging will be in progress during that time.

Rules of Contest

ONE—Entry must be made on the form printed in the Jacksonville Journal and Courier and mailed or handed to the Elks Christmas Home Lighting Contest Editor, Jacksonville Journal and Courier.

TWO—Twenty-one prizes will be given. One grand prize of $10 for best display in city, for each ward, first prize $5, second $2, third $1, fourth $1 and fifth $1.

THREE—All entrants must display lights during the period between December 20 and January 1, inclusive.

FOUR—Effectiveness, simplicity, attractiveness and appropriateness of display will be the points of judging.

FIVE—The committee will appoint disinterested persons to judge entries and their decision will be final and awards made, January 2, 1937.

Veteran Painter Knocked Down By Truck, Injured

Patrick Hayes Suffers Fractured Shoulder In Accident

Patrick Hayes, veteran painter and paperhanger, was painfully injured about 6:30 o'clock last night, when he was knocked down by a truck at the corner of East Douglas avenue and North East street, near his rooming house. The truck was said to have been driven by James O. Harris, who resides east of the city.

According to police a youth came to the station and reported that a man was lying on the pavement on East Douglas avenue. Captain Earl Williams and Officer Albert Spreen went to the scene and brought Hayes to the police station. The youth told the police that a large trailer stock truck had passed the corner just before he noticed Hayes lying in the street.

The officers after securing a description of the truck started a search and found the Harris truck at the corner of Hardin and Morton avenues at a filling station. Harris was surprised when informed that the truck had knocked Hayes down as neither he nor Jack Johnson of Pearl, Ill., who was riding in the truck, had seen anyone when they passed the corner of Douglas avenue and East street. Neither man remembered feeling any jar.

Officers believe that Hayes walked into the side of the truck as he was first seen lying almost on the sidewalk.

As soon as Harris was informed of the accident he ordered Hayes removed to Our Saviour's hospital and called Dr. F. Garm Norbury to attend him. Dr. Norbury found that Hayes had suffered a fracture of the left shoulder and some injuries to the head. He also was suffering from shock.

Hayes' daughter in Virginia was notified of the accident and came to the hospital last night.

Urban North in 1850 Discussed at D.A.R. Chapter Meeting

Prof. George Adams Speaker Thursday Evening At Chapter House

Professor George Adams, of MacMurray college faculty, in an address upon "The Urban North in 1850," before the Rev. James Caldwell chapter D.A.R., Thursday evening, at the Chapter house, declared "That a broad prospective of the period of 1850 showed slavery as the center of the stage, also an increased industrialism in the country."

In developing his theme, with many apt illustrations from noted authors, who had made observations upon their travels in America at that period, Mr. Adams gave a 'reminiscing' talk, telling of the great growth in the north, giving this section the most men, money, and machinery, which was a great influence toward the war between the North and the South. Foreign visitors were impressed by the seeming prosperity, better cloths than in the same class in Europe, more books, new homes were springing up. These travelers were also horrified by the democratic manners of the people and the democratic policy of the government. England was an aristocratic government and reports of travelers were most interesting, and probably accurate., since their viewpoints were from those observing unusual traits, habits, customs and policies.

According to Professor Adams, long passages descriptive of the camp meetings and frontier fights are valuable accounts of that period, which to the natives seemed commonplace.

Mr. Adams took his audience back to the 1850 cities, which were closely built, streets of short planks covered with mud, hampering horse drawn vehicles and pedestrians. Hotels were better than we would expect, he said. Among these the St. Nicholas in New York was the largest, however differing from the commercial hotels of today, with many small families making them their homes. The restaurants were not first class as a rule, although "Taylors" attracted the attention of the authors and travelers of the times, in its elaborate decorations and the fact a meal could be obtained for thirty-five cents.

Traveling by stage and railroad and its accompanying hardships were reviewed by the speaker, who also told of the observations of the European visitors and their comments upon the vulgar manners of the people in general, whom they encountered on their trips.

Professors Flourish

It was an age when professors and lawyers flourished, and in business some department stores in New York and in some of the larger cities were employing a large number, as high as 400 employees. Women and children at this period were beginning to work in factories, with the coming of machinery. In this the Lowell factory in Massachusetts stands out with the largest number of women employed. Here they lived in boarding houses, edited a magazine, in which they published poetry and articles. In keeping with the times they were restricted socially, but otherwise had many cultural advantages.

Reformers were noted in this decade, Susan B. Anthony, Amelia Bloomer, also Unitarianism, the Mormons, Millerites and strict Puritanism these all having the tendency to cause disturbing elements not only in the religious world but in the governmental and cultural realm. The traits and conflicting emotions shown in the life of the nation was considered strange and inconsistent by the European writers and travelers, although the courage, hospitality and generosity and culture of a certain class received due acknowledgement.

Mrs. George Drennan, the Regent presidad during the meeting and opened the program, presenting the musical numbers which preceded the address. Mrs. Clara Moore Nelms, Mildred Bean and Dudley Hitte, violin trio, gave a beautiful group of numbers, selections from "Scenes from Snow White," and "Christmas Pastorale," original compositions of Mrs. Nelms which were greatly enjoyed.

Following the program a social hour was held in the dining room with Mrs. Charles Harney as chairman of hostesses, assisted by Mrs. Lee Stice, Miss Katherine Barr, Miss Ellie Trabue and Mrs. W. T. Wilson poured at the table, which was lovely in its decorations of red Christmas candles. Lighted candles around the room completed the holiday setting.

Chairmen on arrangements were: Mrs. LaRue Van Meter, program chairman; Mrs. Wm. Barr Brown, music chairman, and Mrs. Charles Harney.

Musical History Of Jacksonville Calls Back Famous Names

Stars of Opera and Concert Stage Appeared in Old Auditoriums Here

Rubenstein, Gottschalk, Patti, Kellogg, Nilsson, Ole Bull—all of those names are familiar to music lovers, for they are great names of past generations of artists. That each one of these artists mentioned made personal appearances in Jacksonville may be an enlightening fact to citizens today.

A Jacksonville citizen in inspecting some old clippings this week discovered a column from the Jacksonville Journal, date unknown. It contained much information about the city's earlier musical history, revealing facts which are little known at present.

The late Ensley Moore, writing 40 or probably 50 years ago, stated:

"In 1863 L. M. Gottschalk played here, in Strawn's hall, and I have supposed he was a greater master of the piano forte than any one who has appeared in this country, unless it might be Rubenstein or Paderewski. If it be said that Gottschalk was largely a composer, is that not in his favor, that he could compose, as well as execute brilliantly?

Patti Here in '64 or '65.

"About 1863 or 1864 this city was favored by a visit and concert by Carlotta Patti, a great singer of her day, with a fit company. In those days Jacksonville had a Philharmonic society of its own, led by Herman Strachauer, and composed of singers far above the average in ability and culture. Clara Louise Kellogg, the first American prima donna, was here in Strawn's hall once or twice about 1870.

"Other great artists in vocal and instrumental performance have delighted our citizens in the past, and Jacksonville used to stand with Quincy next to Chicago for appreciation and paying audiences.

"The greatest singer Jacksonville ever greeted and for which it gave an $1,800 house, in Strawn's opera house, in 1871, was the great Swedish girl, Christine Nilsson. With her was Annie Louise Carey, also a wonder in her art.

"Jacksonville has had a great and creditable record in this regard in the past and it is to be hoped our city is now renewing her youth in seeking and welcoming high exponents of the musical art," Mr. Moore concluded.

Rubenstein in 1873.

An anonymous contributor in the same column signed "Music Lover," had the following to say:

"I have seen the statement several times of late in your paper that Harold Bauer was the greatest pianist who ever visited our city. I desire to make one exception to that statement, while yielding to none in enthusiastic admiration for Mr. Bauer's wonderful playing. But, to my mind, no player we have had is equal to the great Russian pianist and composer, Anton Rubenstein, whose concert in February, 1873, was, to my knowledge, the greatest musical event in the history of our city.

"Of course his visit was before the recollection of our younger people and recent comers, but such a memorable event should not be lost from the musical history of Jacksonville."

At this point in the musical column The Journal reviewer stated that he was not aware that Rubenstein ever visited Jacksonville and "certainly believes in giving credit to whom credit is due." He then proceeded to list a few other musical celebrities whose voices were heard in this community many years before the greatest singers became commonplace in almost every home through the medium of the phonograph and radio.

Patti Spends Sunday.

Adelina Patti as a child prima donna was here with Ole Bull and his company. Their concert was given during the later fifties in the German M. E. church on West State street. Patti's father was traveling with her at that time and the party stopped at the old Park hotel, corner of the square and North Main street, where the Montgomery Ward store now stands.

The concert was given Saturday evening and the musicians spent Sunday in Jacksonville. On Sunday Adelina was invited to spend the afternoon at the Rawlings home, 706 West State street, where there were a number of children in the family. Adelina was delighted to be among the children of her own age, something she seldom experienced during her concert tours.

Mario, the great Italian tenor; Brignoli, Emma Abbott and others delighted Jacksonville audiences in those days when a singer had to be here in person to be appreciated.

Jersey Transfer Co. Head Dies at Home

Was Son-in-law of Man Who Drove Jacksonville to Alton Stage Coach

Jerseyville—Charles Houze, 72, well known resident of Jerseyville died at his home in the eastern part of the city, Tuesday at 9:45 p.m., following an extended illness.

Funeral services will be held at the Jacoby Brothers Chapel Friday at 2:30 p.m. Rev. W. L. Hanbaum, pastor of the Methodist church of Jerseyville, will officiate and the interment will be in Oak Grove cemetery in this city.

The deceased is survived by his wife, Mrs. Cora Finch Houze, whose father, James Finch, operated a stage coach between Alton and Jacksonville during the early days of transportation along that route.

For more than a quarter of a century, Houze operated a transfer company in the City of Jerseyville. Before the advent of the motor truck, his horse drawn stake wakons transported a major part of the freight from local railroad yards to the city stores. He also operated a bus line from the local depots to city hotels.

Then came the motor vehicle age and a revolution in the transportation system. House supplanted his horse drawn equipment with modern facilities. A few years ago he discontinued motor bus service from the local depots to the hotels and business district.

Seek Delhi Route

The drive to bring about the completion of the hard road between Jerseyville and Alton by way of Delhi took tangible form Tuesday evening at the meeting of the Jerseyville Chamber of Commerce.

A stretch of nine miles of uncompleted hard road exists between Jerseyville and the Madison-Jersey boundary south of Delhi.

All the traffic into St. Louis via way of Quincy and from the territory north of Jerseyville along 67 now goes over the present Route 67. This particular highway has twenty-two dangerous curves, and fourteen motor vehicle deaths have occurred in the past two years along this stretch of hard road.

A letter to be sent to civic groups of nineteen cities along Route 67 north of Jerseyville was read by Leonard Glassbrenner, secretary of the Jerseyville Chamber of Commerce.

The communication requested that the civic organizations to whom it is directed pass resolutions urging the completion of the Delhi Route.

Mrs. Anna Harms

Mrs. Anna H. Harms, widow of Chris Harms, formerly of Jerseyville, died at her home in St. Louis Wednesday morning, December 9th, at two o'clock.

The deceased was the daughter of the late Conrad and Johanna Guenther Berger, natives of Germany, and was born in Jerseyville, June 1, 1857. At the time of her death she was seventy-nine years, six months and eight days of age. The husband of Mrs. Harms was engaged in the cooperage business in Jerseyville for many years.

Surviving Mrs. Harms are one daughter, Mrs. Johanna L. Trenth of Cripple Creek, Colorado, and three sons, Chris of Detroit, Michigan, Carl of St. Louis and Harry Harms of Sullivan, Missouri.

Funeral services will be held at the Jacoby Brothers Chapel in this city Saturday afternoon December 12th at two o'clock. Rev. Oliver Shank of St. Louis will officiate and interment will be in Oak Grove cemetery.

Michigan Girl Slays Best Friend on 'Impulse'

An impulse to "kill somebody," declared Hope Morgan, 25, drove her to slay her best friend, Bessie Giltner, 25, right, in East Lansing, Mich., as the two girls addressed invitations to Miss Giltner's wedding. Miss Morgan, shown at left leaving police headquarters with a detective, calmly told of her "homicidal fixation," and asked to be sent to an asylum for the insane. She admitted firing four shots into Miss Giltner's chest. Facing a murder charge, Miss Morgan also may be examined by a sanity commission, officials said. Miss Giltner's father is Dean W. C. Giltner of Michigan State College.

CITIZEN PAPERS OF PIONEER ARE FOUND

Son Discovers in Bible Naturalization Decree of Clements Bentler

Fred Bentler, residing on Route 2 out of Jacksonville, recently discovered in an old family Bible the naturalization papers taken out by his father, Clements Bentler. The discovery brought to Mr. Bentler's mind memories of the sturdy life of his father, who settled on forty acres of land 14 miles west of Jacksonville, in civil war days.

"My father," said Mr. Bentler, brought my mother to this section and settled on 40 acres he purchased. In the course of his farming career he accumulated 175 acres of land. He also reared eleven children on the homestead. It can't be done in these days."

The elder Bentler came to this country from Prussia about 1855. He was employed in St. Louis when he met and married his wife. At once the family came to the Winchester community and settled on a farm. The naturalization papers were issued at Winchester about ten years after Mr. Bentler came to the United States. Clements Bentler died June 1, 1893.

Macomb Race Horse Breeder Sells Out

Sam Haines, Who Has Raced Horses Here for Years, Forced to Retire

Sam Haines, Macomb man whose stable of race horses are known throughout the middlewest as constant money winners, is dropping out of the racing game and disposed of his entire string of horses and racing equipment at a public sale recently. Ill health forced Mr. Haines to drop the business which has occupied a large part of his time for a number of years.

Among the 12 head of trotting and pacing horses which were sold were Boy Direct, Guy Arion, Bud Bemboe and Bell Weather, all heavy prize winners during the racing season the past year. The sale of Mr. Haines' stable leaves but one stable of race horses in McDonough county.

Mr. Haines has raced horses here at the Morgan county fair almost every year of the fairs. He was well known as a driver of good mounts.

White Hall Youth Has Narrow Escape

Plane in Which He Was Riding Forced Down Near Detroit

White Hall—Wayne Corder, formerly of this city, and a former sports writer for Jacksonville and Springfield newspapers, and who is now located in Detroit, Michigan, where he is employed as assistant bookkeeper and stenographer for the Pennsylvania Central Corporation Air Lines, writes his mother, Mrs. Cleve Corder, that he recently received an increase in salary and in the same letter tells of an interesting experience connected with the raise in salary.

He had been offered a position with the American Air Lines in Chicago, and went there by plane to investigate the offer. When his own company heard of his offer, they met the competitor's price and he remained with the Detroit company.

However his experience on the plane was rather exciting. He went to Chicago in a big 21-passenger Douglass airplane. The trip to Chicago was very nice but coming back to Detroit something happened to the plane. Up to that time he described the trip as the best and prettiest he ever saw. He says, "we got up over the overcast and flew about fifty feet above the clouds and those clouds were the most beautiful thing one could imagine. It would give one the idea a person could jump out and bounce off those clouds, they looked so real.

About forty-five miles out of Detroit one of our engines quit running entirely and the pilot tried to get more power from the other engine. And then it went haywire. We began getting only half power out of it and began losing altitude. The plane began to vibrate until we were afraid the engine would be torn loose from it or a wing torn loose. The pilot then made a turn for Wayne County Airport, about fifteen miles from the City Airport and he was barely able to get there. It was necessary to keep our landing gear up in the wings in order that we could make the field safely. The landing gear was held that way until we were fifty feet above the ground and then he dropped them barely in time to land. We really did not know just how close it was until we landed, and then the pilot told us. He had turned the plane over to the co-pilot and began writing up his log book so that in case anything happened to us the people that found it would know what had caused the accident.

"That is close enough to suit me for the time being."

Here's a cup of coffee that you like to meet at the breakfast table. It cheers you up, picks you up and starts you off with a bang. A real cup of coffee at an economical price.

PEP-UP-CUP COFFEE
1 LB. BAG 15c

Your great-grandmother and mine
Roasted Coffee all the time
She bought the Coffee when it was green
Small and Round, 'twas called a bean
"Coffee must be fresh," she'd say
And, have it roasted every day.
Then, sweet aroma'd fill the air
"Aunt Liza" roasting it with care.
Brown the green beans would become
Next, the grinder'd hum and hum!
Coffee she did grind each day
"Pep-Up-Cup" Coffee is made this way!

Barr-Neirman Case Plea Taken Under Advisement Here

Attorneys Argue Over Right to Amend Defense Answer to Injunction Case

A hearing on the motion of the plaintiff to strike the supplemental answer filed by the defense in the case of O. N. Barr vs. Louis Neirman, et al., was held Thursday morning before Judge Walter W. Wright in circuit court. Arguments were presented by attorneys for both sides.

The supplementary answer filed by the defense alleged that the plaintiff had committed acts prohibiting him from seeking relief in a court of equity. The original case concerns an injunction secured by Barr against Neirman preventing interference of union workers with the operation of Barr's Laundry.

Attorney Jacobs of Chicago, representing Neirman, defended the supplemental answer in the argument, declaring that the plaintiff "because of conscionable conduct, is prohibited from seeking relief in a court of equity, into which one must come with clean hands." The supplemental answer charges that the plaintiff had violated the national Labor Relations Act, and also state laws protecting the rights of workers.

Jacobs charged that the failure to recognize the rights of collective bargaining was a violation of the law, and also that working conditions had been such in the plant that the one-day's-rest-in-seven law in the state had also been violated. He charged that the strike at the plant was forced on the employes who went to the picket line in an effort to obtain their rights. As an additional argument, the Chicago attorney declared that plaintiffs in other cases have obtained writs of injunction not solely to check violence, but also to prevent the union from gaining strength through increasing its membership, contending that this is not in accordance with labor laws. The attorney pointed out that the claims of the plaintiff in the bill for injunction that there had been violence had not been proved, and that when the time came, he said he felt certain that the union would be able to prove that the police officers through cooperation with the officers of the union, felt that they could control the situation and that there was no need for an injunction.

Judge Wright took the matter under advisement and will hand down an opinion on the motion later. It is hoped to send the original case to trial next Tuesday, the Judge said, and if it cannot be tried then, it may have to await the February term of court.

Attorneys Paul Samuell and Walter Bellatti represented the plaintiff in the proceedings, contending that the supplemental answer which the defendants were seeking to have entered did not answer any of the allegations of the injunction, that the alleged purpose of the defendants, however good, did not warrant violence, that the bill seeking the injunction did not attempt to stop all picketing, but merely asked to stop violence, and that regardless of how the plaintiff conducted his business, the defendants had no right to cause violence.

Attorney Samuell read a number of court decisions which he said had a bearing in this case, and declared that the plaintiff was ready to try the injunction case as to the violence actually committed during the early days of the strike at the laundry. He charged that the defense attorneys were attempting to draw a red herring across the trail of the issues of the case in their plea to file a supplemental answer.

The injunction, he argued, was granted to stop acts of violence in connection with the strike, and that was the only reason the plaintiff sought the injunction. He read from a decision of the United States supreme court that the employer has the right to fire employes ,and that employees have the right to join any organization they wish.

VAN METER SPEAKS TO FRESHMAN CLASS

Coach LaRue Van Meter, speaking to freshman assembly at Illinois College Wednesday morning, urged freshmen to develop an integrated personality.

Likening organization of the personality to organization of a business enterprise, Van Meter said "Organize the affairs of your life to result in an integrated personality. This is the only way in which you can be sure of happiness."

"This applies not only to college, but to all the events of your life."

Van Meter cited instances of individuals who had failed simply because they failed to achieve a properly rounded and integrated personality, and of others, who possessed of less native ability, had become successful through attaining this goal.

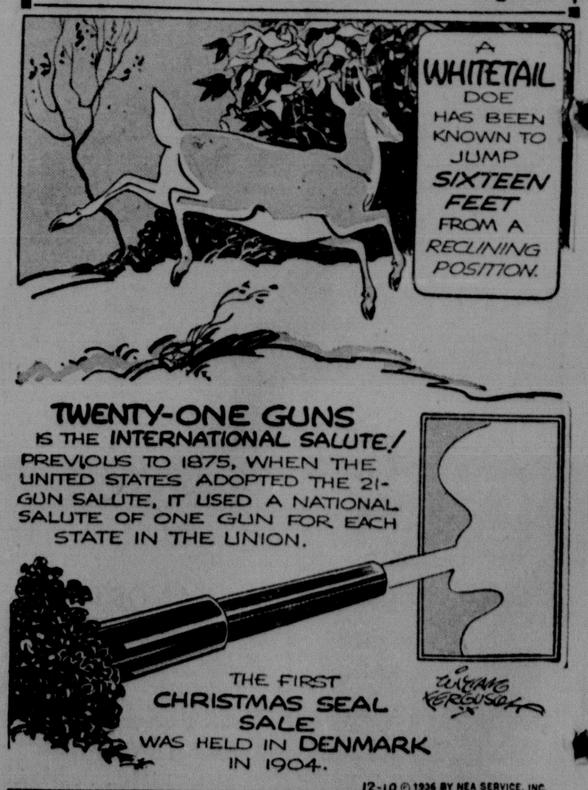
THIS CURIOUS WORLD By William Ferguson



THE 21-gun salute now is used all over the world, but in the early days there was no set standard. Monarchies received more guns than republics, for they were considered more important. In the beginning, gun salutes usually consisted of seven guns, since seven always has been regarded as a magic number.

All Grains React After New Records

Chicago, Dec. 10.—(AP)—Rushing up to fresh peak price records, wheat and other cereals then reacted late today, and lost most of their new gains.

Heavy selling to realize speculative profits was largely responsible for late setbacks of quotations. On the other hand, persistent spirited bidding for wheat to be shipped to European importing countries did much to shoot the market upward at times to as high as $1.29¾ for Chicago December delivery, an overnight jump of 1¾ cents a bushel to the topmost point since 1929.

May wheat in Chicago reached an apex of $1.25, contrasting with 43¼ cents a bushel three years ago, the lowest price since the turn of the century.

Chicago wheat futures closed varying from ¼ cent lower to ¼ cent higher than yesterday's finish, Dec. 128¾-¾, May 123¾-124, July 1.09¼-¾, corn 1¼ down to ¼ up, Dec. 109¾-¾, May new 103¾-¼, July new 99¼-¾, oats unchanged to ¼ off, May 49-49¼, and rye showing ¾-1 bulge, May 99¾. In provisions, the outcome was unchanged to an advance of 22 cents.

Stocks Rally After King's Abdication

New York, Dec. 10.—(AP)—With tension over the British crisis lifted by abdication of the king, and confidence in further domestic business recovery renewed, selected stocks rallied sharply in today's market.

Steels, mines and specialties forged ahead for gains of 1 to 2 points, with a few jumping 5 or so.

Trading jogged along comfortably in the first hour. Then announcement of Edward's renunciation of the throne was immediately followed by a buying burst that, for a long time, put the ticker tape as much as 3 minutes behind floor dealings.

The Associated Press average of 60 issues was up 4 or a point at 71. Transfers totaled 2,440,670 shares against 1,855,200 yesterday.

Belated recognition of exceptionally high mill operations, combined with the disclosure of U. S. Steel's November shipments were the largest for the month since 1929, aided the steel group.

A few rails were still popular on estimates of freight shipments, earnings and hopes emergency rates will be extended by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Farm and Rural Interest

Illinois Bans Shipments of Alfalfa From Ten States Where Weevil is at Work; Farm Gathering Tonight at Literberry; Township Series is Concluded

Governor Henry Horner, by proclamation Wednesday, established an embargo against shipments into Illinois of alfalfa and other hay products from areas in ten states known to be infested with the Alfalfa Weevil.

The prohibition, issued on the recommendation of the states Department of Agriculture, applies until further notice to the entire states of Nevada and Utah, and to specified localities in the states of Arizona, California, Colorado, Idaho, Nebraska, Oregon, South Dakota and Wyoming.

Importation is permitted, however, if shippers comply with prescribed precautions. Shipments which violate these conditions are subject to destruction or return to the point of origin at the discretion of the department of agriculture.

The insect pest, known scientifically as Hypera postica Gyll, is injurious to alfalfa and other forage crops. It has not appeared in Illinois at the present time.

Community Meeting Is Tonight at Literberry

A community meeting under auspices of the Morgan County Farm Bureau will be held tonight at the Literberry school. There will be several short talks, and a musical program will be provided. The public is invited to attend.

All Townships Ready For Annual Meeting

Since early autumn, meetings have been held in each of Morgan county's 18 townships by the Farm Bureau for the purpose of electing township officers and discussing programs of activity for 1937. The last meeting of the series was held last night at Prairie College school, southeast of Franklin for members in Township 14-8. County Farm Adviser W. P. Coolidge has attended most of these sessions.

Tuesday night of this week a township meeting was held at Chapin, attended by about 20 members. Henry Detmer was reelected township director.

Roodhouse, Scottville Power Cases Postponed

The Illinois Commerce Commission on Wednesday continued to Jan. 19 applications of farmers for reasonable rates for rural electric service by the Central Illinois Public Service Co. The auction was necessary because some of the complainants or their representatives failed to notify the commission of their acceptance or rejection of proposals made by the company.

Those who filed the original complaint and gave evidence were Frank C. Reilly of near Cantrall; Harry L. Diehl and C. W. Knapp, Ford county; A. B. Koehler, Livingston county; and L. R. McNeil, Tuscola. Other complaints heard were filed by Walter S. Nottingham, Pleasant Plains; village of Sailor Springs, Clay county; Raymond P. Field and others, Roodhouse; William H. Dewhurst, Clay county and Luther Ambrose, Scottville.

Pike Livestock At National Market

Jess A. Gleckler of New Salem was represented in the trade at National Stock Yards, Ill., on the first of December, with a shipment of 40 hogs that averaged 225 pounds and sold at the practical top of $10 cwt.

Layne Bros. of Baylis topped the sheep market at the yards on Dec. 2 with a shipment of eight fat lambs that averaged 85 pounds and sold through Producers at the top price of $8.75 cwt.

C. R. Smith of Pittsfield was represented in the trade with a shipment of 31 hogs that averaged 234 pounds and sold at the top price of $9.90 cwt.

Less Beef and Higher Prices Is World Prospect for 1937.

Indications are that total world supplies of beef and veal during 1937 will be somewhat lower than in 1936 with prices continuing on the upward trend, according to a report issued yesterday by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics.

Reductions in cattle numbers below 1934 and 1935 levels are indicated in most of the important commercial producing countries, including some of the large surplus producing countries such as Argentina and Uruguay, as well as such important deficit producers as the United Kingdom and Germany.

Reduced cattle numbers in North America are largely the result of drought and short feed supplies in 1934 and 1936. Cattle numbers also declined in Europe, where the tendency has been to bring livestock production into closer alignment with domestic feed supplies. In South America some liquidation has taken place in the last four years as a result of the restricted European outlets. In the surplus producing countries of the British Empire, production has been encouraged by preferential treatment in the British market, but cattle numbers so far reported for 1936 are no larger than in 1935.

Most of the beef entering the world trade moves from countries of the Southern Hemisphere to the European market mainly as chilled and frozen beef. Heavy import duties, exchange difficulties and other trade barriers operating in European countries, especially quantitative restrictions on imports of non-Empire frozen and chilled beef by the United Kingdom, are forcing such surplus producing countries as Argentina and Uruguay to divert a larger number of their cattle into the canned-meat trade for which new markets are now being developed.

In the United States, the total quantity of domestic beef moving to market during 1937 is expected to show a substantial reduction due to the enforced liquidation that has taken place in cattle numbers by reason of the feed grain shortages resulting from the 1934 and 1936 droughts.

Cattle and beef prices are expected to continue at a high level because of reduced supplies and the steady improvement in consumer purchasing power. Supplies are not likely to be supplemented to any large extent by increased imports of live cattle from Canada because of the short feed grain crops and high feed prices in that country. On the other hand, some further increase in imports of South American canned beef may be expected unless the European market improves.

Pasture Program Will Be Aired at Farm-Home Week

With brighter crop prospects ahead for 1937, a program designed to assist Illinois farmers in taking advantage of higher prices and in re-establishing legume and pasture seedings is scheduled for the agronomy short course at the annual Farm and Home Week, sponsored by the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois, January 11 to 15.

Opening the course at 1 o'clock on the afternoon of the first day, J. C. Hackleman, crops extension specialist of the agricultural college, will discuss the problem of making the supply of legume seeds go farther. He will be followed by E. O. May, director of the regional soybean industrial products laboratory, located at the college, who will point out some of the recent developments in the industrial uses of soybeans.

Pasture improvement problems will be considered the second day the agronomy, animal husbandry and dairy departments cooperating to present all phases of pasture management.

Hybrid corn, the latest development in corn improvement, will feature the discussions on the third day. The range of subjects will include hybrid corn performance tests, kind of soil needed for hybrid corn production, the use of hybrid corn in reducing chinch bug damage and the grasshopper control campaign for 1937.

Effects of soil conservation practices on productivity, use of legumes in soil conservation and the control of erosion by vegetation will be taken up on Thursday, the fourth day.

Friday, the final day, will be weed day with discussions centering around weed control problems. A session will also be devoted to county seed wheat improvement programs.

"The agronomy short course is just one of the more than 20 such courses that will be offered at the 40th annual Farm and Home Week," asserted W. L. Burlison, head of the agronomy department of the agricultural college. "In addition to the many short courses offered by the various departments of the college, speakers recognized as national authorities will give a view of world conditions affecting farming and rural living as they address the general sessions held daily."

TEARING apart threatening "straw men" is a thrilling American occupation. We do it in sports, we do it in business, we do it in our personal affairs, we do it wherever worthwhile gains have been made. To acknowledge a threat puts us on the defensive but to challenge it stoutly sends us into action to keep it from interfering with our purpose

The mellow teachings of experience temper our views. We learn that few things are as dangerous, as difficult, as desirable or as perfect as they seem at first sight and that looking at problems from a distance may lend undue importance or conceal merit.

We do not have to follow the crow's forgetfulness. At least we can make some effort to profit by past enlightenments. Instead of having a good scare from afar, we are privileged to move up close enough for detecting any wisps of straw, — and in time to get some of the corn.

The Journal and Courier believes in walking boldly forward with a full, intimate scrutiny of whatever comes along, — no matter what it looks like. If it's a good thing, let us hear about it so everyone can be in on it and help make it a success. If it is not sound or not honest, it should be stopped at once. There is no use temporizing. Prompt action trebles its own value

It takes a little courage and an ingrained habit of taking nothing for granted in matters affecting community welfare. We know that our readers have the ready energy to act when they have the facts and giving them the facts is our twenty-four-hour daily business. Their response to this sentry service is the real compensation of running a newspaper.

K-r-r-aw! K-r-r-aw! Ha Ha K-r-r-aw!
This IS a joke on me!
All summer long, this good corn field
I've let severely be
Because I thought that thing a MAN
With shotgun on his knee.

If I had only dared to do
What I am doing now,
His fearsomeness would chill me less
Than if it were a cow,
And as I passed to take his corn
I'd hardly deign to bow.

Ah, me! Perhaps I'll learn some day
To look facts in the face,
But something tells me inwardly
That next year in this place
The same straw man will scare me stiff
And keep me on the chase.
